PATROLMAN AND STUDENT VICTIMS OF 'RIDES' AS POLICE PUSH CRUSADE AGAINST ROBBERS

New Scandal Trail Hit in Proposed Plane Deals

EX-CHIEF OF NAVY REPORTED HOLDER OF AIRCRAFT STOCK

Committee Members Release No Details But Report "Suggestion" of Irregularity in $7,500,000 Deal.

ADAMS TO BE ASKED FOR EXPLANATION

Hoover Cabinet Member Said Shareholder in Firm Which Profited Heavily on U.S. Business

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Congressional committees today obtained new evidence which a member said suggested irregularities in the proposed purchase of $7,500,000 worth of airplanes by the army, and began delving into airplane company stockholdings of a former secretary of the navy.

A house naval subcommittee heard J. H. Kindelberger, vice president of the Douglas Aircraft Company, of Santa Monica, Cal., testify that Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy from 1929 to 1933, owned 500 shares of Douglas stock.

Kindelberger said he did not know when Adams obtained the stock but Chairman Delaney, democrat, New York, said he would ask that question when the former secretary testifies next week in the committee's investigation of profits on airplane contracts.

21 Per Cent Profit. Committee members said that in 1930, 1931, 1932 and the first eight months of 1933, the Douglas Company did $1,283,341 of business with the navy and made an average profit of 21 per cent.

The belief that "we're on the trail" of an irregularity was expressed by Chairman McSwain of the house military committee after its subcommittee had spent the forenoon quizzing Captain W. B. Persons, assistant in charge of the war department's current procurement division, about proposed surrounding bill for $7,500,000 of new airplanes to be purchased with public works funds.

Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, and Brigadier General Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the air staff, have discussed that transaction in detail with a subcommittee in secret session. Awarding of the contracts is being held up.

Not Competitive? Chairman Roger, democrat, New Hampshire, of the subcommittee, said today the evidence so far "suggested" a possibility that bids on the $7,500,000 worth of airplanes were not freely competitive.

There was a further "suggestion," he asserted, that there might have been "collusion" involving some airplane companies as well as some army officials.

Neither Rogers nor McSwain would say more but the information resulted in a hurriedly called conference on the house floor during a roll call vote on the tax bill.

Discussing the situation with McSwain and Rogers were representatives of the Douglas Aircraft Company.

HOUSE APPROVES GENERAL TAX BILL BY VOTE OF 388-7

Republican Move To Cut Postage Rates Loses; Income Tax Loopholes Believed Plugged.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Designed to boost collections by stopping up legal loopholes in the income tax law, the new $255,000,000 general revenue bill was approved by the house today by the overwhelming vote of 388 to 7 and dispatched to the senate.

Immediately after it had been reported on the other side, Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, announced hearings would begin before the finance committee next week. Secretary Morgenthau is to be called as a witness.

In their only opportunity to change the bill under the drastic procedure adopted for its consideration, house republicans were unsuccessful in a move to reduce the 3-cent first-class postage rate to 2 cents.

A motion to send the bill back to the ways and means committee for insertion of an amendment for such a reduction was defeated, 272 to 132.

16 Democrats. Sixteen democrats and four farmlaborites joined the 112 republicans in favor of the motion, while Speaker Rainey was one of the 272 democrats voting no.

The seven opposing final passage were all republicans: Britten and Dickson, of Illinois; Ellis, Kahn and Welch, of California; Foss, of Massachusetts; and McFadden, of Pennsylvania.

Democrats voting with republicans for reduced postage: Condon, Rhode Island; Conner, Massachusetts; Crosser, Ohio; Douglas, Massachusetts; Dunn, Pennsylvania; Gillespie, Illinois; Hildebrand, South Dakota; Hoepfel, California; Mead, New York; Monaghan, Montana; Morehead, Nebraska; Rankin, Mississippi; Secret, Tennessee; and Young, all of Ohio.

Previously notice had been served by Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, ranking republican on the ways and means committee, that the bill would be amended.

DEMOCRATS BOLT PRESIDENT IN VOTE TO HIKE U. S. PAY

George Among 13 Democratic Senators Breaking With Roosevelt in Economy Program.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Thirteen democrats joined an almost solid lineup of republicans in a senate revolt against the economy act today and by a single vote put through a proposal to restore the whole 15 per cent federal pay slash on July 1.

The victory encouraged the combination of republicans and democrats who want to go farther than the administration on veterans' benefits, which will come up tomorrow for decision, but democratic leaders saw a possible veto if the house concurs in the liberalizations.

Senator Byrnes, democrat, South Carolina, leading the administration fight on the economy sections, opened up the bill to new veterans' legislation when his motion to suspend the rules was adopted without debate, but his compromise proposal, which was pending at adjournment, is far less liberal than many amendments offered from both sides of the aisle.

41 to 40. The vote to restore one-third of the federal pay cut, involving an additional $26,000,000, effective from February 1, to July 1, came before restoration of the full 15 per cent after that date, which will cost another $189,000,000, was voted 41 to 40.

The 13 democrats voting for the restoration, offered by Senator McCarran, democrat, Nevada, were joined by Shipstead, of Minnesota, the farm-labor member, and 26 republicans.

One republican—Cousins, of Michigan—voted with 39 democrats in opposition.

The 13 democrats who bolted the administration cause were: Bone, Buffalo, Copeland, Costigan, Dill, George, Long, McCarran, Neely, Reynolds, Thomas, Oklahoma; Thomas, Utah, and Van Nuys.

Democratic leaders told newspapermen many democrats had said they had to vote against the administration on the question because of individual objections to the bill.

Other liberalizing amendments approved was one by Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, to increase the pay of workers in navy yards so that 40-hour week would be given for a 40-hour week, and one by Senator O'Mahoney, democrat, Wyoming, restoring purely administrative promotions to fill vacancies in government departments.

No Roll Calls. Neither of these required a roll call. Byrnes said he was willing to let the Thomas amendment go to conference with the house.

The administration forces had held out for a one-third restoration of the federal pay cut, effective February 1, and another one-third restoration July 1, with authority given the president to wipe out the whole 15 per cent slash when it is a study of the cost of living showed it to be warranted. STAVISKY SCANDAL STIRRED BY KILLING

Pawnshop Swindler's Name Linked With Spy 'Ring' as Jurist Is Slain.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The slaying of a prominent jurist and a police announcement that Serge Stavisky may have been an international spy opened new chapters today in the sensational $400,000,000 Stavisky pawnshop bond swindle.

The body of Judge Albert Prince, who had worked on several financial scandals and was to have been a witness in the Stavisky investigation, was found, mutilated, on a railroad track near Dijon. He was bound, and a bloody knife was found nearby.

Authorities revealed that they were probing the possibility that "Handsome Alex" Stavisky acted as an international spy, selling secret information to Germany and using women agents.

A secret service report in the matter has been submitted to the judge in Dijon, but no charges were available tonight.

Pawnshop Founder. Stavisky was the founder of the famous Paris pawnshop, whose recent collapse led to accusations of irregularities in connection with one of the highest-placed officials, the downfall of two French cabinets, and riots that cost hundreds of casualties.

Stavisky, the friend of many authorities, was found dead when police closed in upon him in his Chamonix retreat.

Police declared that Judge Prince, of the court of appeals, had been trapped by a fake telephone call that his mother was ill in Dijon, that he left Paris in answer to the message, and that he had been slain en route.

Revival of Old 'Racket' Seen in $9,156 Robbery

Seized Machinery Said Used by Confidence Men to "Duplicate" Bank Notes of Victims. Woman Arrested in Case.

Working on the theory that an old racket had been revived in Atlanta, detectives Wednesday night sought to prove that the $9,156 robbery in a fashionable apartment hotel here Tuesday was the work of a ring of expert confidence men who lure their victims with the promise of easy money through "chemical duplication" of large denomination bills.

Corroborated by a federal investigator who examined the "machinery" and apparatus found in the apartment of Morris Peck, alias W. Bittman, and Martin Love, alias A. Mintz, the theory was said by Detectives J. T. Woodruff and E. I. Hildebrand to be the only angle upon which they are working at present.

A third suspect, Lora Saper, a woman, was arrested by detectives in an Atlanta hotel. Examined carefully by the federal operative Wednesday, the seized equipment consisted of a small hand press, a large quantity of chemically-treated blotters and various tubes, vials, chemicals, German silver and textbooks on chemistry. The government detective said it was almost an exact duplicate of a collection of "racket" material seized in Florida several months ago and which was used by confidence men to obtain money from their victims.

Photography Used. Detectives explained that the procedure called for a pretense of duplicating bills through the use of "chemical photography." They said the confidence men who had used the racket in the past told their victims that they could use one bill in the elaborate machinery and produce a second.

As explained by the federal man, the method was that of reversing the original bill to make it appear as two. The new development in the investigation came when James, Mike and H. Deraney, Georgia department store owners, indefinitely postponed the buying trip which they claimed was their aim when "victimized" by Love and Peck. They told officers Tuesday that they were lured to the apartment of Peck and Love late Tuesday afternoon after they had cashed a check for $9,000 at the First National bank and were there robbed of five $1,000 bills and eight $500 bills.

Two Others Sought. According to their complaint, two other men were involved in the robbery and were victims in the apartment of Love and Peck when they were stunned into unconsciousness by "a sip of knockout drops" which were told was rare old German whiskey.

Atlanta police Wednesday night were trailing two men they believe were the strangers through Tennessee and Kentucky, a large number of telegrams were dispatched to cities and Continued in Page 6, Column 6.

$300,000 SOUGHT FOR NEW AIRPORT

Request to CWA Will Be Taken to Capital by Miss Shepperson.

A request for $300,000 to grade and improve the new North Side airport for which a five-year lease was signed Wednesday will be taken to Washington today by Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state civil works administrator, when she goes to the capital to attend a conference of directors with Administrator Harry Hopkins. It was announced Wednesday.

The lease was signed between T. R. Sawtell, owner of the 300-acre tract, and C. A. Matthews, commissioner of DeKalb county, with an option to buy the property for $100,000 at the expiration of the lease, according to Jesse Draper, one of the sponsors of the project. The rental on the tract is to be the remission of taxes.

The North Side tract, on the old drill field at Camp Gordon, has six less acres than Candler field, it was said. Inquiries as to prospective hangar tenants already have begun to pour in, and many inquiries are being received from persons who may buy planes and obtain instruction in flying, Draper said. Inquiries also are being received from allied industries which contemplate locating near the field, which is convenient to the main line of the Southern Railway and is 800 feet from the new Atlanta-Buford highway.

Runway on the airfield will be 3,000 feet long, and will afford a take-off in any direction.

Prince Defies Royal Family, Determined To Wed Actress

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The love of the 27-year-old prince's friends said today.

After their marriage the pair plan to return to Germany, where Sigvard will continue his work in the Ufa Film Company of Berlin—where he is known as the popular Herr Holger—and where the bride-to-be also has been employed.

Fraulein Patzek is a daughter of a commoner, Antone Patzek, a Berlin businessman. Therefore, the prince's grandfather, King Gustaf, and his father, sought to prevent the marriage.

Also lined up against the match is the Swedish diplomatic corps.

But Sigvard and Fraulein Erika dodged the parental representatives and played hide and seek with Scotland Yard operatives who tried to locate them—and then, with much laughter, went to a fashionable West End restaurant for lunch.

The prince refused to discuss the whole matter. He and his fiancée had been in seclusion since their arrival from Berlin several days ago.

SENATE SUMMONS LOOMS FOR EIGHT IN LYNCHING PROBE

Men Accused in Maryland Case May Be Called To Testify Before Congressional Group.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Eight men named today as participants in the lynching of George Armwood, negro, in Princess Anne, Md., last autumn may be called as witnesses by the senate judiciary subcommittee considering the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynching bill.

At the conclusion of a two-day hearing of proponents of the measure, Senator Van Nuys, democrat, Indiana, chairman, said tonight he would consult with the other members on the desirability of summoning the eight alleged lynchers and officials of the eastern shore of Maryland who were charged at the hearing with neglect of duty.

The names of the eight men were given the committee by W. Preston Lane, attorney-general of Maryland, who said their identities were vouchered in affidavits by police and others who saw Armwood taken by force from the Princess Anne jail and hanged.

Those named by Lane were: Sheburn, Meter, Reader, "Big Boy" Smith, pugilist, and William P. Hearn, truckman, all of Salisbury; Irving Adkins, of Loretta, truck foreman on the Pennsylvania railroad; William H. Thompson, of Princess Anne; Jack Walpole, of Crisfield, reported to be known as Jack Sterling; Jackson Sterling and Randolph Sterling; Martin Dyer, of Pocomoke or Snow Hill, and "Rusty" Heath, a former jailer of Salisbury, reported to be known also as Morby L. Heath.

Three of those named, Thompson, Adkins and Hearn, were arrested and brought to Baltimore after state authorities stepped in, but were released when the grand jury failed to indict.

As today's session neared its close, two witnesses were ordered to the witness stand by Van Nuys, the senator who was taking advantage of the hearing to disseminate "communist propaganda."

They were Bernard L. Aides, Baltimore attorney, engaged by the state to prosecute the case against the defendants, and Lee, Maryland negro charged with murdering an Eastern Shore family, and James W. Ford, New York negro charged with the murder of a white man.

JOHNSON OPPOSES WEEK OF 30 HOURS FOR U. S. INDUSTRY

General and Swope Tell House Committee Hour Reductions Should Come Slowly Under NRA.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson, who has asked a lot of questions of others during the last few months, answered a few himself today, during the course of which he told a house committee that he thought an arbitrary 30-hour week could not be applied to industry.

He went to the labor committee early in its hearing and sat by while Gerard Swope, president of General Electric, voiced similar views against the 30-hour week.

Both he and Swope took the attitude that hour reduction should come through the more flexible operations of NRA codes.

AUTOS AND MONEY TAKEN BY BANDITS, OWNERS PUT OUT

Supernumerary Policeman E. H. Johnson and C. D. Waddell, Opportunity School Student, Tell of Abductions.

MAN BOUND OVER IN $2,500 BURGLARY

E. D. Verville Held for Grand Jury; Stanley Dodge, Struck by Bandits' Bullets, Succumbs.

Atlanta's steadily increasing list of holdups and burglaries Wednesday included a supernumerary policeman and an Opportunity school student, while a recent holdup victim died at Grady hospital as the result of bandit-fire and police intensified their crusade against criminals by having E. D. Verville, holdup over for the $2,500 burglary at the home of Mrs. Frank Lowenstein and arrested a new suspect in the $9,000 robbery of three Syrian brothers.

Supernumerary Patrolman E. H. Johnson joined the ranks of those bandit-victims who have been taken for rides in their own cars and released after being robbed of a butch "for cigarettes." Johnson, who was in civilian clothes, said that both bandits were armed, and that they answered the description of the robbers in many other abduction-holdup cases.

Two white men, one wearing smoked glasses and brandishing a nickel-plated pistol, climbed into the car operated by D. Waddell, 30, of 4 Park avenue, student at the Opportunity school, and drove him to Cascade Heights, where they robbed him of $4 in cash, his watch, a fountain pen, a camera and auto and abandoned him. Waddell caught a ride into town and reported the matter to police.

His description of the kidnappers tallied with that of the two who earlier in the night had robbed Johnson.

Bandits' Victim Dies. As the result of bullet wounds received in the holdup, when he resisted a holdup at his Sunset camp on the Macon highway, Stanley Dodge, 30, operator of the camp, died Wednesday at Grady hospital.

In the police court, two persons were held for the Fulton grand jury on charges of receiving stolen goods in the Lowenstein robbery case.

Valued at $2,500 was a watch, a camera and a jewelry box, valued at $2,000, pending action by the DeKalb grand jury in the Lowenstein robbery. George Crow, a pawnbroker, was fined $27 on a charge of whooping the purchase of a second-hand jewelry; J. K. King, jeweler, was fined $27 on a similar charge, and was bound over to the Fulton grand jury.

Big Increase Is Shown In Nitrate Shipments

17-Year-Old Youth Kills Father in Home

COLON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Chilean nitrate shipments to Europe so far this year were shown in official figures today to be 700 per cent greater than during a like period in 1933.

Canal Zone shippers remarked about the increase, particularly in view of the troubled European situation, and the opinion was advanced that the nitrates may be used in making munitions, although Chilean officials said shipments were for agricultural purposes.

Only 2,238 tons of nitrate were shipped through the Panama Canal in January, 1933, to Europe, compared to 1,467 tons in January, 1934. Last February 33,259 tons were shipped.

Seventeen-year-old Stanley Graham is charged with killing his father today, Alonzo Graham, 56, by beating him on the head with a hammer and stabbing him five times with a butcher knife, after the elder man switched off the radio to which the youth was listening.

"I don't know why I did it," police said the boy told them after his arrest.

Police were greeted at the door by Russell, on their arrival. He led them to the basement, which he had taken to the basement.

District Attorney Maurice Breen said he will file a murder charge.

MRS. F. T. BENFORD WINS HIGH COURT DECISION

The state court of appeals Wednesday upheld a verdict for $12,791 awarded Mrs. Fred T. Benford to Robert A. McCord, formerly of Atlanta but now of Asheville, N. C., the case growing out of an automobile accident at Gainesville in July, 1931.

The court said that the evidence showed that McCord was driving the auto at the time it struck a telephone pole despite his claim that Mrs. Benford's husband was temporarily steering it while he consulted road maps.

Mrs. Benford was riding in the back seat at the time of the crash.

Mrs. Benford, who claimed the loss of her right arm as a result of the accident, had sued for $100,000.

ABDUCTION PLOT FOILED BY EDITOR

Iowa Publisher Escapes Attackers in Chicago Hotel Corridor.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—A bold plot to kidnap E. P. Adler, 61, newspaper publisher of Davenport, Iowa, and haul him away in a huge trunk was foiled today when Adler tore loose from the clutches of two slugs in a Morrison hotel corridor.

Ten minutes later, while Adler and detectives examined the roomful of kidnapers' paraphernalia—pigs, guns, sponges and trucks—one of the kidnapers slunk back to the scene of the attack and was captured.

The five-foot sample case found in the room adjoining Adler's had been perforated to provide air.

The two men, taking Room 538 by special request, had said they were bowdlerizing Adler's might have been crammed into the trunk, bound and gagged and carried down the freight elevator without exciting suspicion.

Identifies Attacker.

Instead, his head aching from two severe blows on the skull and ear with a pair of blackjacks, Adler confronted the prisoner in the state's attorney's office and positively identified him as one of the two kidnapers. The suspect gave his name variously as Charles Clyde Phillips and Fred Mayo, of fictitious addresses in New York and Cleveland. State's attorney's investigators, examining him for several hours, expressed satisfaction that they could build a strong kidnapping case against the man. His confederate escaped.

The story pieced together indicated the pair had followed Adler across four states before the opportunity came to pounce on him, outside of his hotel room.

Adler is publisher of the Davenport Times, president of the Davenport Savings Bank and Trust Company and head of the Lee syndicate of middle western newspapers.

Last Saturday, as he left Davenport for St. Paul, he recalled that a stranger stroled up to him, touched him on the arm and said:

Stranger's Warning.

"Mr. Adler, be careful. There are two men following you. They have been following you for several days. One of them, a fellow wearing a brown suit, is watching you from the platform now."

The prisoner caught here wore a brown suit.

Adler, however, did not recognize his informer and merely laughed and said, "Forget about it."

Apparently the two kept close by Adler. In their Morrison hotel room, they were railroad tickets indicating they followed him to St. Paul and then

"Kidnap-Proof" Baby Evolved by Scientist

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Science is trying to make babies "kidnap proof."

A complete apparatus designed for this purpose, baby included, has been assembled by Marcus W. Hinson, vice president of the institute for radio service men for exhibition, at the organization's convention, beginning next Friday.

A small cell which emits a thin ray of invisible light is concealed beneath a false bottom in a baby's crib. This beam, shuttled between mirrors at the head and foot of the crib, focuses on a photoelectric cell and any interruption which shuts off light from the "eye" starts a loud alarm. Electricity from an ordinary wall plug actuates the contrivance. An alarm is also set off if the current is disconnected.

to Chicago. In a Y. M. C. A. hotel room occupied by Phillips was baggage shipped direct from Davenport to Chicago.

Adler came here for a meeting of the Inland Daily Press Association, taking a northwest corner room on the fifth floor, No. 538.

A maid noticed the pair loitering in the hall outside Adler's door about 7 a. m.

Loitering Strangers.

Adler emerged a half hour later. He turned and locked his door. As he looked up, he saw a man in brown suit and black kid gloves slinking in the doorway next to his.

"He was clutching a blackjack in his right hand," Adler related. "I remembered the warning I got at Davenport. I stepped out of the room just as the man lashed out with the blackjack. The weapon struck the side of my head, cutting my left ear, and I shouted for help."

He ducked from a second blow that cut him on the top of the head. Then he broke free from the grasp of the assailant and raced toward the hall, shouting for help. The police rushed, and Adler summoned a house detective. They found Room 538 open and were examining it when Phillips, or Mayo, returned and was caught.

Adler's hurts were minor. After a long session with the officers and the prisoner he left tonight for Davenport.

Randolph Bound Over In Narcotic Round-Up

Chester Randolph, alias Bill Randolph, was bound over to the federal grand jury, with bond set at $2,000, on charges brought by federal narcotics agents after a round-up of persons said to have been operating a dope ring on the north side.

Hearings of W. G. Kay, 40, of an Atlanta hotel; W. A. Franklin, 39, of 1073 Hardee street, and J. B. Chase, of 613 Hobson street, were continued by United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith. The four men and Helen McDermott, 28, of 108 Washington terrace, were held for the federal government in police court Wednesday afternoon when they appeared on charges of disorderly conduct.

Narcotic agents said that more arrests may be made as the result of the work of an undercover agent who spent several weeks in gathering evidence against local dope peddlers. Agents said that Randolph was arrested after a delivery of narcotics made at a local hotel, marked money being paid for the dope.

REPUDIATION FOE WINS FRENCH CHAMBER POST

PARIS, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Deputy Paul Bastid, who in 1932, voted in favor of payment of the French war debt to the United States, today was elected president of the foreign affairs commission of the Chamber of Deputies at that position Edouard Herriot, now vice premier.

Boy, 5, Is Recovering After Rare Operation

Bobby Burns, 5-year-old son of the Rev. Robert W. Burns, minister of the Peachtree Christian church, Wednesday was recovering after an operation Tuesday which was described as a rare operation for this part of the country. The operation was on the jugular vein for the removal of a blood clot which developed after a mastoid operation.

The child, who is at the Georgia Baptist hospital, is said to have a good chance to recover following the operation, which was performed as a last resort. The boy has been given two blood transfusions.

Sales Program Is Discussed At Leonard Dealers' Meeting

Godfrey Strelinger, sales manager of the Leonard Refrigerator Company, who attended a dealers' meeting here Wednesday, and J. C. Brown, president of the Brown Distributing Company, host to the dealers at a dinner.

By far the largest sales, advertising and promotion program in the history of the Leonard Refrigerator Company, oldest refrigerator manufacturer in the country, will be placed behind the new line of Leonard electric refrigerators this year, it was announced at a meeting of dealers of the company from this section of the country here Wednesday night.

"We are convinced that the country has progressed far enough along the road to recovery to assure a good business year in 1934 and it is this conviction that has influenced us to launch our largest sales and advertising campaign," said Godfrey Strelinger, sales manager, who came from Detroit, Mich., to conduct the meeting.

The local meeting was held at the Henry Grady hotel under the auspices of the Brown Distributing Company, 665 Glenn street, S. W., local distributor for Leonard. This meeting was one of 40 being held in key cities of the United States to inaugurate the record program of activity for the Leonard Refrigerator Company.

In addition to improved business conditions in practically all parts of the country, we have another reason for increasing our sales, advertising and promotion activity for 1934," Mr. Strelinger said. "Our 1934 products are the best in our 33 years of existence, offering advancements that only a few years ago we did not think were possible."

SPEAKERS TO DISCUSS DECATUR RECALL MOVE

Issues of the Decatur recall campaign will be discussed at a meeting of the citizens sponsored by the Young Democratic Club of DeKalb county at 8 o'clock Friday night at the courthouse in Decatur, it was announced Wednesday as ex-Mayor Scott Candler, whose defeat for re-election as chairman of the campaign, was precipitated by the recall, sent to the press a statement issued by the recall committee in reply to one issued Tuesday by Commissioners W. C. Henderson and George W. Woods, whose recall is sought.

Henderson and Woods said that they will be represented at the meeting Friday night, and Frank Thomas, chairman of the recall committee, said that William Schley Howard and ex-Mayor Candler will speak for the recall forces.

The committee's statement is as follows:

Since the change in the administration in Decatur at the first of the year, Messrs. Henderson and Woods, against whom a recall election has been set for March 2, have been in the city for 11 years under former Chairman Scott Candler, that the city has lived each year within its budget and has had a cash balance on hand at the end of each year. The city having on hand in its general fund January 1, 1934, in cash $8,282.07; uncollected taxes $13,975.68, and a judgment against the corporation for over $16,000.00. They found all bills had been paid promptly, all employees including teachers paid promptly.

Sinking Fund Attacked.

Finding no fault with this record, they have attacked the sinking fund account, and charge that there is a deficit in it and that the fund has not been protected. All of which has no basis of fact on which to rest.

These gentlemen do not know that before bonds are issued, under the state law the city commission must pass an ordinance levying taxes to retire each particular issue. Sinking fund commissions have only to collect these taxes and remit them to the state.

Acting under such ordinance the city commission at various times turned over to the sinking fund other funds, money that was invested in Decatur bonds maturing in 1936, to the amount of $28,000.

CWA ORDER FORGERY LAID TO NEGRO WOMAN

Nora Davis, negro woman, was bound over to the grand jury in municipal court Wednesday on a charge of forgery in connection with passing a CWA relief order which was one of a book of such orders reported to have been stolen from relief administration headquarters.

According to Irving S. Nathan, attorney for the relief administration, 50 orders were in the block alleged to have been stolen. Merchants have been warned heretofore that in the case of forged orders the CWA treasury will not be responsible for payment and that the same care should be exercised as is employed in the cashing of checks. It was said that ten of the stolen orders are known to have been passed on several merchants.

Methodist Pastors' Pay Averages $1,695 in '33

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The average salary of 16,500 Methodist ministers in the United States last year was $1,695, a decrease of only $7 from 1932, the board of pensions and relief of the Methodist Episcopal church was informed in a report today. The figure includes allowance for living quarters.

The report, presented by the Rev. W. B. Farmer, executive secretary of the board, said 3,481 ministers received pensions for the year, the amount being based on $10.02 for each year of service.

The board, composed of nine ministers and nine laymen from all parts of the nation, accepted the resignation of C. A. Patzsch, of Los Angeles, and elected Dr. Otto U. King, of Huntington, Ind., in his place. Bishop F. T. Keeney, of Atlanta, is chairman of the board.

WILLIAM E. BARRETT DIES OF LONG ILLNESS

William E. Barrett, 65, father of Alderman Ellis B. Barrett, of the thirteenth ward, died Wednesday morning at a private hospital following an extended illness. He was a retired railroad engineer, having been employed by the A. & W. P. railroad for 37 years, and resided at 1106 Hardee street.

Mr. Barrett was a native of Atlanta and had been in failing health for several years. He is survived by two other sons, George F. Barrett, widely known member of the Atlanta detective bureau, and Robert I. Barrett, and five daughters, Mrs. Lora Bell, Mrs. R. C. Lee, Mrs. V. S. Langdon, Mrs. Carl Chandler and Mrs. E. E. Hogue, all of whom reside in Atlanta.

Final rites will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Western Heights Baptist church. The Rev. Carl Davis and the Rev. W. M. Albert will officiate and interment will be in Crest Lawn cemetery, with Harry G. Poole in charge.

J. G. ST. AMAND, VETERAN BANKER, REACHES 80 TODAY

J. G. St. Amand, president of the American Savings bank, today observes his eightieth birthday, having that anniversary in common with George Washington. Mr. St. Amand is still active, doing a full day's work each day, and he insists that he feels just as young as ever. The bank will hold open house from 10 o'clock this morning to 1 o'clock this afternoon in his honor.

Two other prominent Atlantans observed birthdays Wednesday. These were George Washington Bowman, Atlanta's "apostle of sunshine" and special representative of the First National Bank of Atlanta, who was 69, and J. K. Orr Sr., president of the J. K. Orr Shoe Company, who was 77. Mr. Orr was presented with a large bouquet of flowers by the Chamber of Commerce in recognition of his services. He is the oldest living past president of the chamber.

CLASH OF EXPERTS MARKS DEAN TRIAL

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Expert testimony was pitted against expert testimony today in the murder trial of Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, 33-year-old baby specialist, as her defense attorneys put two physicians and a college chemist on the stand to combat the state charge that Dr. John Preston Kennedy's strange death last August was caused by mercury poisoning.

On several points dealing with Kennedy's illness, the defense testimony was directly contradictory to that adduced by the state in the attempt to show that Dr. Dean poisoned Dr. Kennedy with a whisky highball.

Dr. A. E. Gordin, consulting physician, who made numerous examinations of Kennedy when he was dying in a Jackson, Miss., hospital, returned to the stand to repeat his testimony of yesterday that he did not believe the patient was suffering from mercury poisoning. He said it was his opinion that Kennedy was suffering from acute nephritis.

In direct contradiction of state testimony, he said that "Kennedy was not suffering, as far as I noticed, from bluish gum discoloration, swelling of the face or stomach or bad breath, which had been described as symptoms of poisoning."

Dr. J. M. Sullivan, 67, chemist at Millsaps College, testified for the defense that he had made two analyses of Kennedy's stomach contents at the request of attending physicians during Kennedy's fatal illness and found "no trace of mercury poisoning or any other metallic poisoning."

He said he was not asked to make the post-mortem analysis of the stomach organs after exhumation of the body, which State Chemist W. F. Hand testified last week showed "a trace of mercury."

Governor Paul McNutt, of Indiana, and Governor Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia, will be on the speaking program of the Georgia Education Association at its convention in Atlanta April 12, 13 and 14, it was announced Wednesday. Other speakers will include Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools; Miss Jessie Gray, president of National Education Association; M. R. Little, of Louisville, president of the state association, and Dr. George D. Strayer.

PWA MAY REDUCE UNIVERSITY FUNDS

Smaller Units of State Educational System To Be Affected.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—In drawing up final details of the contract for release of the $3,570,000 fund already allocated for permanent improvements in the university system of Georgia, officials of the national public works administration indicated today that it may be necessary to scale down some of the individual items in the important state project.

The projects to be reduced were not made known, but are understood to include several of the smaller units in the university system. Neither the University of Georgia at Athens, nor the Georgia School of Technology in Atlanta, is affected by the contemplated revision, it was said.

In proposing a reduction in some of the items, officials of the PWA are said to have been guided by the feeling that the projects are not altogether self-liquidating in character. An effort will be made, therefore, to limit the expenditure to the revenues which are in sight for later liquidation.

Rather than pool the resources of all state educational institutions coming under the application filed by the regents of the university system, PWA officials have determined to place each institution on an individual basis. Having projected a policy of that kind, officials decided to give closer scrutiny to the revenue prospects of each of the projects to be undertaken, with the result that several were found too short of the requirements.

In reducing the allocations for some of the smaller units, however, officials will seek to give the state the full benefit of the fund already approved and this is expected to open the way for the larger institutions to get a greater amount than originally proposed, provided, of course, their prospective revenues warrant the increase.

Practically every section of the state is scheduled to share in the $3,570,000 fund, which will be used in building dormitories, gymnasiums, auditoriums and other permanent improvements in the state university system.

BODY OF J. P. BILLUPS TAKEN TO MISSISSIPPI

Following impressive funeral services Wednesday afternoon at St. Luke's Episcopal church, the body of Joseph P. Billups, widely known railway executive, was taken to Holly Springs, Miss., where interment rites will be held at 9 o'clock this morning. He will be buried in the Holly Springs cemetery.

Dr. John Moore Walker, rector of St. Luke's officiated at the services for Mr. Billups Wednesday, and prominent Atlantans acted as pallbearers and honorary escorts.

Mr. Billups, who was general passenger agent of the A. & W. P. and Georgia railroads, died Tuesday morning in Asheville, N. C., where he had been confined to a hospital for six months. He was widely known in Atlanta and in the south.

20 Minutes in Auto With Brisbane Bring Many Interesting Memoirs

By WHITNER CARY.

Suppose you had the opportunity of talking to Arthur Brisbane during the length of time it takes a fast automobile to travel from the Terminal station to the Biltmore hotel. Would you talk of world problems, the evils of prohibition, the kidnapping racket, the banking situation, American unpreparedness or California climate? Maybe you would, but there were many more things that I thought of asking Mr. Brisbane in that brief stretch. Maybe you will find the answers as interesting as I did.

He started work on the old Sun when he was 19 years old and his first assignment was to write a story concerning the birth of triplets in a Brooklyn family. "I didn't know much about triplets," mused Mr. Brisbane, "and what was more to the point I didn't know the way to the Brooklyn bridge, which was essential in reaching the triplets." He did not seem particularly interested in the literary merit of that story, and thought the city editor may have given it three or four lines in the paper.

The greatest newspaper story of the last 10 years, in his opinion, was the Lindbergh kidnapping. Mr. Brisbane ranks this story ahead of Lindbergh's crossing to Paris.

The best story he ever read in a newspaper was one written by David Graham Phillips on the death of a child. A close second would be one from the gifted pen of the late Richard Harding Davis.

Those who may have entertained an idea that Mr. Brisbane is not a sport lover are mistaken. Two or three little anecdotes in our conversation dispelled that illusion for me. He was a young reporter on the Sun, way back in the Dana days. The sports world was agog over the Sullivan-Mitchell fight. Brisbane was sent along with the crack sports writer of the paper to give sidelights on the crowd. In those days sports writers would occasionally take drinks containing a slightly higher degree of kick than a Coca-Cola. The result was that Brisbane wrote three columns on the actual fight and the Sun ran every word of it. Some idea of how good that story must have been may be gathered from the fact that the Sun was a four-page paper.

Later, Brisbane went to England and there wrote many stories concerning the mighty John L. He is not, however, a prize-fight enthusiast; neither does he enjoy horse racing to any great extent. All of which brings up the story of the $60 and his first bet.

The ponies were running at Sheepshead Bay and a friend called him up to suggest that they go down and make a few honest dollars. Came the race in question. The favorite was two to one. Target was 10 to one. Down went the Brisbane fortune at that price on the long shot. Unfortunately there is no moral to the story, because Target won and young Brisbane was richer by $600. It was the most money he had ever had. As he has made few wagers since, I make bold to say that Arthur Brisbane is one man who has beat the races.

He likes other sports. His chief outdoor recreation is riding. He owns a stable of fine riding horses. His favorite indoor game is bridge. However, he quickly added that it is talking bridge that he plays best and not the serious variety.

He is an extremely interesting talker. It would be a treat to go to Athens Thursday and listen to him and that great raconteur of the red clay hills, Dr. S. V. Sanford, get together. You know he is an interesting talker, because when the Biltmore was reached I was sorry the conversation was over. I guess, after all, that is the acid test.

MAYOR TO INSIST THAT STURDIVANT NAME DETECTIVES

Mayor James L. Key will ask the police committee at his regular session Thursday, March 1, to reassign Assistant Chief of Police A. Lamar Poole to the command of the Atlanta detective bureau.

The mayor, however, will insist that the personnel of the department be selected with the full indorsement of Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant, instead of allowing Poole to hand-pick the men.

"This matter of selection should have the sympathetic co-operation of both chiefs, and Poole should be considered in the matter," Key said. "But Poole should not demand the right to pick the men, when Chief Sturdivant might not concur in certain assignments."

"I am confident that the two chiefs will submerge any personal feelings and will conduct the department for the best interests of all citizens and for the most efficient conduct of the department. These assignments should not be made because of political alignments of various members of the department, but because of special adaptability of the men and their ability to deliver the goods. I believe every officer of the police department and every committee member concurs in this view, and, therefore, know that the matter will adjust itself."

R. B. ELEAZER SPEAKER TO HOLMES STUDENTS
"Students should cultivate the idea of living harmonious, helpful and happy lives among the people in the community in which they live, furthering a friendly relation between the races."

Wedding Halted by Death Groom To Get Fee Back

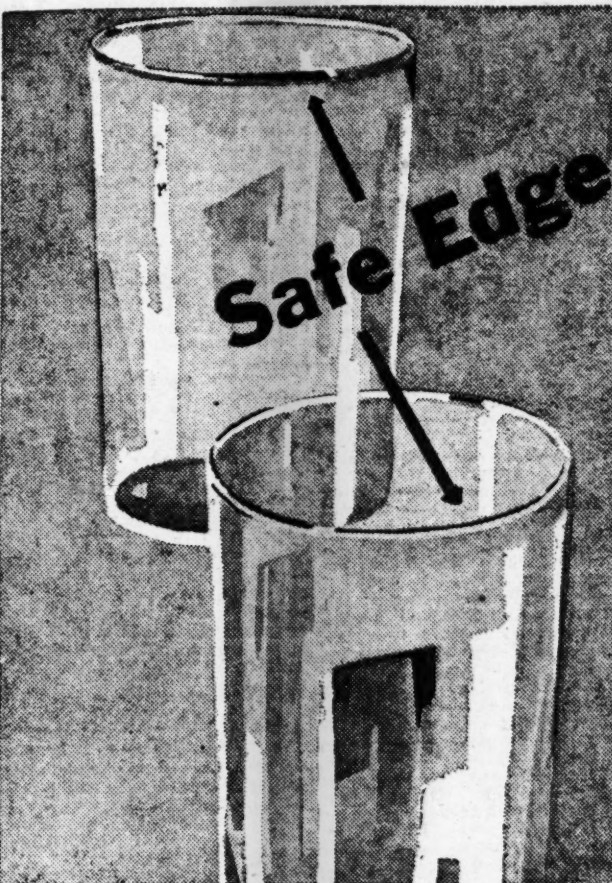

Few matters are passed upon by the Fulton county board of commissioners without some discussion of the subject under consideration.

No discussion was called for, however, and nothing but hearty ayes responded to the call for a vote Wednesday when a petition for return of a $2 marriage license application fee was read. The petition of Louis Moses Brown, negro, related that after an application by himself and Martha Smith had been granted, Martha had died before the date set for the wedding, and asking "please could he have his $2 back."

Wynekoop Defense To Claim Rheta Slain by Intruder

Woman Doctor Did Not See Daughter-in-Law for Hours Before Murder, Says Counsel.

CRIMINAL COURTS BUILDING, CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The way was paved today by defense counsel in the second trial of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, accused of slaying her daughter-in-law, Rheta, for a defense based on the theory that the 23-year-old wife of the defendant's son, Earle, was slain by an intruder in the basement operating room of the Wynekoop mansion. A mistrial ended the first hearing of the case when the defendant's physical condition became critical.

The flat assertion that Dr. Wynekoop did not see her daughter-in-law from 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder until she discovered the body on an operating table that night was made by W. W. Smith, defense attorney, in his opening statement to the jury.

A morbid fear by Rheta of contracting tuberculosis and of other illness was advanced by the defense as one of the factors which led Dr. Wynekoop to take out insurance policies on the girl. The insurance policies, with the defendant as beneficiary, have been a trump card in the prosecution's hand.

When examinations by Dr. Wynekoop and other physicians called by her failed to reveal the girl's fears, said Smith, Dr. Wynekoop hit upon the plan of having her examined for insurance on the theory that if her application were accepted it would be proof to the jury that she was not a morbidly fearful woman.

Branded in the opening statement by Prosecutor Charles S. Dougherty as a woman inspired by humanitarian impulses, Smith told of the early marriage of Earle and Rheta and how Dr. Wynekoop prepared for them a suite in her home and supported them for several years.

FRIGIDAIRE EXECUTIVES LEAVE FOR FLORIDA

Lee A. Clark, sales promotion manager of the Frigidaire Corporation, and a group of Frigidaire executives left Atlanta Wednesday night for Tampa, following a successful meeting held Wednesday with the local organization.

"Frigidaire is decidedly optimistic over business conditions in general," said Clark, "and particularly in the refrigerator business." "Electric refrigeration stands out prominently in the records of business achievement during the past few years and has come to be known as the depression-proof industry. Year after year, with 1932 the sole exception, sales volume in this industry has increased. In the making of these records, Frigidaire, as the world's manufacturer and sales activities, has had a major part."

"In 1933 refrigerators crossed the million mark in unit sales for the first time with sales aggregating 1,065,000, a gain of 27 per cent over 1932, 10 per cent over 1931 and 25 per cent over 1930.

"Looking into 1934, we believe that this year's gain will continue, and that this year will see considerably more than 1,000,000 units sold. Sales improvement already shown by our organization indicates that this increase may be a conservative estimate. Statistics covering the entire United States show that sales of Frigidaire dealers alone for January were 133 per cent over January of a year ago."

Martial Law Lifted Throughout Austria

VIENNA, Feb. 21.—(UP)—Martial law was lifted throughout Austria at 7 p. m. tonight.

The majority of police in Vienna continued to patrol their beats with rifles, chiefly for effect and also because search of houses is proceeding.

FINAL SERVICES HELD FOR MRS. CARL FAIRES

Funeral services for Mrs. Carl Franklin Faires, the former Miss Nevada Moring, of Florida, who died Saturday here, residence on Cascade terrace, were held Wednesday afternoon at Spring Hill. The Rev. Fred L. Glisson officiated and burial was in Crest Lawn cemetery. Members of the West End Woman's Club formed an honorary escort.

Pallbearers were James E. Warren, John H. Cooper, Hugh Smith, A. A. Barr, Howard Clark and J. O. Pitts. Mrs. Faires is survived by her husband; two sons, Professor Virgil Faires, of the A. & M. College, of Bryan, Texas, and Ensign Carl F. Faires Jr., of the U. S. S. Mississippi, stationed below Havana, Cuba; a sister, Mrs. Ella Moring Chisholm; a niece, Mrs. J. Lewis Hargrove, who was formerly Miss Doris Cason, and a granddaughter, Virginia Lee Faires. Mrs. Faires was a member of the Park Street Methodist church and of the West End Woman's Club, and had resided in Atlanta since her marriage.

ORDER RETURNING IN BLIZZARD AREA

Northeast Is Staggering Back to Normal After Worst Storm in 35 Years

By the Associated Press.

New York city and environs staggered back to normal Wednesday after the buffeting of a snowstorm termed the worst in the metropolis in 35 years.

While transportation on the suburban lines into New Jersey, Westchester and Connecticut returned to approximately regular schedules, the greater part of Long Island continued snow-bound. Milk and other supplies went undelivered in many places.

Northport, L. I., had sustenance for only "a day or so."

But with moderating temperatures a rapid recovery from the paralysis of transportation agencies was progressing.

Some Still Blocked.

Many automobile arteries in the greater city continued blocked by drifts, however, the snow reaching a depth of several feet in places.

Sanitation Commissioner P. Goodrich in charge of snow removal estimated the cost of the storm to the city at $2,000,000. The sanitation department had 32,000 men out. An ice crust made removal laborious.

Despite the improvement on land, shipping conditions in New York harbor were termed even worse than during "the height of the storm." Though the wind had abated, the harbor was filled with ice. Several incoming liners were reported to be unable to enter.

Subsidence of the storm along the Massachusetts coast enabled the Northern Star, steam collier, which ran aground off Winthrop Tuesday, to establish contact with the shore.

Ships in Tow.

Concern over the fate of the disabled trawler Georgetown, which went to her rescue 200 miles off shore at Boston Tuesday, was relieved when the cutter wirelessly she had taken the ship in tow.

The air-mail movement by the army, although handicapped by adverse weather in parts of the country, functioned near normal. Several flights postponed by the widespread snow of the previous day, which caused more than 25 deaths, were made.

In the south temperatures moderated from the minimums which brought unwanted cold to Dixie, but winter maintained its attack in Nebraska, Wyoming and South Dakota. Deadwood, in the latter state, was visited by a snowfall of 8 to 10 inches, heaviest this year.

Dallas Man Killed As Truck Overturns

His head crushed by furniture he was hauling, J. W. Womack, of Dallas, Ga., was almost instantly killed at 6 o'clock Wednesday night on the Lawrenceville highway near Decatur, when his truck overturned on a steep embankment.

Womack and his cousin, G. W. Womack, 35, also of Dallas, were en route home from Spartanburg, S. C., with a truck loaded with household furniture when the machine got from under control on a curve four miles from Decatur and turned over down the embankment. An electric refrigerator and other heavy pieces landed on the elder Womack, killing him almost at once. G. W. Womack was knocked unconscious, but was not seriously hurt.

An ambulance of A. S. Turner was rushed to the scene but the elder Womack, who was driving, was already dead. His cousin received medical attention but was not taken to a hospital.

He is survived by his wife; four sons, Virgil, M. G., Wendell W., and L. E. Womack, and a daughter, Miss Lucile Womack, of Dallas. The body will be taken to Dallas for funeral services and interment, the arrangements to be announced later.

21 Children Injured In School Bus Wreck

LAKE CHARLES, La., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Twenty-one children were injured, three critically, when a school bus overturned on the Elton gravel road near the Oberlin school today.

About 40 persons were on the bus. The driver suffered a broken arm, and his wife, riding with him, was injured internally.

The injured children were taken to Oberlin, which sent out a call for all available doctors and nurses in the parish.

The three most seriously injured were small girls, all of near Oberlin. The bus was wrecked when the driver tried to avoid collision with a farm wagon on the road.

NEUROLOGISTS TO HEAR 2 NOTED MEDICAL MEN

Dr. R. M. Chapman, professor of psychiatry at the University of Maryland and superintendent of the Sheppard and Enoch Pratt hospital at Towson, Md., and Dr. J. M. Worts, assistant professor of neurology at New York University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, will speak at the monthly meeting of the Atlanta Neurological Society at 8 o'clock tonight at the Academy of Medicine.

Dr. Chapman's subject will be "Mental Hygiene and the Public." Discussion of the paper will be opened by Dr. Russell M. Oppenheimer, dean of the Emory School of Medicine. Dr. Worts will speak on "The Epilepsies and the Convulsive States" and his paper will be discussed by Dr. Joseph Yampolsky, associate in pediatrics at the Emory School of Medicine and president of the Georgia Society of Pediatrics. Dinner will be served at 6:30 at the academy of medicine in honor of the visitors.

MERCHANTS' BOARD WILL MEET FRIDAY

Announcement has just been made by T. C. Dickson, newly elected president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, of the completion of the formation of the board of directors. The first 1934 meeting of the board is called for Friday, at a 12:30 luncheon at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

At this meeting reports will be received from chairmen of the following committees: Ethics and business practices, finance committee, membership committee, legislative committee and tax committee.

The question of a state sales tax and numerous other items of particular interest to the merchants will also be discussed.

Too-Vigilant Cerberus Lands Master on Gang

A modern Cerberus fell down on the job and landed his master in the chain gang when Judge Jesse M. Wood in city criminal court sentenced Joe Bailey, negro, of 451 Highland avenue, to the gang for six months on a liquor charge Wednesday.

Joe's wary bulldog was so vigilant that he aroused the curiosity of city police. Pulling aside a large dog, the police discovered a subterranean drum containing moonshine.

LOW FARES ARE CITED AS RAILROADS' NEED

George D. Krueger, rate expert on the staff of the Georgia public service commission, testified in a hearing before the commission Wednesday that the only solution of the railroad's problem of lost business lies in acceptance of the fact that the people will ride and ship only where the service is cheapest.

"My general observation," Krueger said, "is that the public will not ride railroad trains if they can ride cheaper on other vehicles of transportation, and the sooner the railroads realize this the sooner they will again become the nation's most important transportation service."

The public was once train-minded, but on account of the continuation of war-time costs of transportation the traveling public quit the railroads and became automobile-minded.

"The railroad carrier testifying in hearings held to decide whether some portion of the present experimental and temporary passenger fare reductions should be made permanent, and the existing spread between the cost of coach and Pullman travel be reduced."

300,000 Miles Off Train.

He said he had personally traveled more than 300,000 miles in the last few years riding on a train, and that the railroads, even at 2 cents a mile would have gotten $6,000 for hauling him if the rates had not been so high that he used other vehicles.

"The railroad carrier testifying in hearings held to decide whether some portion of the present experimental and temporary passenger fare reductions should be made permanent, and the existing spread between the cost of coach and Pullman travel be reduced."

Railroad revenue decreases began in 1928, he said, a year before the general depression. From that condition he said the railroads have been working against the carriers.

The ten principal Class 1 railroads operating in this state, Krueger went on, showed an increase in property investment from $1,612,505,069 in 1922 to $1,985,739,304 in 1932, but expressed the opinion they actually were working at a loss.

He said farm lands, buildings, equipment and stock showed a value reduction of 29 per cent from 1930 to 1932, while the railroads for rate-making purposes valued their property in that period had dropped only about 10.4 per cent. He said line abandonment would almost take care of the 10.4 per cent. During the same period, he went on, the railroads have cut their tax valuations about 25 per cent.

Wage Tables Shown.

He introduced tables indicating increases of 50 to 175 per cent in wage and salary schedules of railroads since 1915. He said the average yearly pay of railroad workers had dropped 46 per cent since 1930 but that officials had lost only about 8 per cent and that a large part of the other reductions had been in working time.

"I am constrained to believe that this is one thing that ails the carriers to a very large degree," the witness said. "Of course it must be realized that railway employees' union organizations have a great deal to say in regard to wage scales. However, I don't think railway executives exhaust themselves very much toward insisting on drastic reductions in salaries or wages in view of the fact that too strong arguments would prove a boomerang to their respective salaries."

"I know of no reason why railway employees should not take it on the chin just the same as other classes of employees in the United States."

He said the freight and passenger rates now authorized and upheld by the interstate commerce commission were the products of "hastily considered action" during the World War and that the commission had done practically nothing toward relief for the public.

The testimony was presented as his own, and not as the official stand of the Georgia commission.

Melvin Traylor's Will Is Filed for Probate

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The will of the late Melvin A. Traylor, filed in probate court last night, provided for the widow, Mrs. Dorothy Y. Traylor, and left legacies to his brothers and sisters.

After being described by associates as "modest," the remainder of the estate was left in trust. Income from the trust after provision for Mrs. Traylor's father and two children and a sister, given the widow for life. At her death the trust fund is to be divided into two equal parts for the benefit of Nancy F. Traylor and Melvin A. Traylor Jr., the children.

In the event they leave no children, the trustee is directed to distribute $50,000 to Mr. Traylor's brothers and sisters equally, or their descendants, and the remainder is to be designated as a perpetual trust, the net income of which is to go to Northwestern University.

No estimate of the value of the estate was given.

KAY FRANCIS GRANTED HER THIRD DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The third marriage of Kay Francis, 30-year-old brown-eyed film actress, was terminated today with an interlocutory decree of divorce against Kenneth McKenna, actor and director.

The actress charged in asking for the legal action to undo the knot that was tied three years ago at Catalina Island.

A court case was listed as Katherine Gibbs Mielziner against Leon Mielziner Jr., their real names. They separated last December.

Her previous marriages were with William Gaston and J. Dwight Francis.

MERCHANTS OPPOSING BIRMINGHAM SALES TAX

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 21.—(AP)—While retail merchants marshaled their forces today to fight the new 1 per cent sales tax the city commission today reached an agreement on the ordinance imposing it effective on March 1.

Merchants announced they would organize a drive for a referendum on the tax, and also discussed circulation of a petition to recall the three members of the commission under a provision in the city charter.

INTERLOCKED RULE OF UTILITIES BARED

15 Individuals Found To Be Connected With 100 or More Firms.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—A partial report on the Rayburn investigation into the control and ownership of public utilities showing that 15 individuals are connected with 100 or more companies was submitted today to the house interstate commerce committee.

The investigation, ordered by the house two years ago, was conducted by Chairman Rayburn, democrat, Texas, with the assistance of Dr. W. M. W. Splan, who recently became a member of the interstate commerce commission.

The partial report shows the relation of holding companies in power and gas affecting control, while other reports are to be made on oil and gasoline pipe lines and communications.

Common.

A statement by Rayburn said interlocking directorates "are common in the utility companies of one system, dealing in power and gas," but added the report does not show such relations between systems. It does show the connection of big utility men with many companies, he said.

E. P. Summerson, of 2 Rector street, New York, the report shows, is connected with 100 companies. He is secretary to the Electric Bond & Share Co.

Miss A. E. Kock, 61 Broadway, New York, associated with the American Utilities Company, is second with 212.

Others connected with more than 100 companies include William H. Wilde, Chicago, Alabama Utilities Service Company, 102, and L. L. Fenton, Chicago, Alabama Utilities Service Co., 101.

The report shows that 3,000 companies are in a "chain of control" whereby a controlling company is sometimes 11 companies removed from the actual operating company.

It said "the most outstanding instance in regard to the number of companies of a company from the head company is the Richmond Light & Railroad Co."

"This company is 11 removed from Associated Gas & Electric properties, which is the top company of the Associated Gas & Electric System," Rayburn said.

The report also showed that 312 persons were affiliated with two or more systems of whom George H. Howard, of New York, president of the United Corporation, leads with twelve.

Actress Located.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 21.—(AP) Ginger Rogers, blonde screen actress, who had been missing from her home since last Saturday night, was located by her mother today on a dude ranch near Kingman, Ariz.

Pellagra Fails To Return After Fifteen Years

Elcomb, Ky.—Mr. Wilbur Alfred says: "Fifteen years ago, I was in very poor health. My stomach ached and burned so much and at times I would be unable to retain my food at all. I was unable to work. A local doctor told me I was suffering from pellagra. I took treatments but it seemed that I only grew worse until I tried Seal's Indian River Tonic. The first bottle seemed to take hold of my troubles and I was in good luck. I continued the treatment and in a few weeks I was feeling well and I have not seemed to have any symptoms of pellagra since."

Ponzi To Try Hand At Selling Groceries

BOSTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Charles Ponzi, the man who once sold a get-rich-quick idea to thousands, starts on a new selling job today.

He will be a wholesale provisions salesman, a job far removed from the financial scheme which led him to prison when thousands of investors lost the savings entrusted to him more than a decade ago. Released from prison a few days ago, Ponzi, a native of Italy, faces deportation proceedings, but hopes to prove he was not in the United States illegally.

In the meantime, he will try his luck at selling groceries.

FACTORY REITERATES GANG IDENTIFICATION

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(UP)—John (Jake the Barber) Factor again identified three Touhy gangsters today as among the men who kidnaped him last June 30 and held him 12 days for $70,000 ransom.

Factor also named Isaac Costner and Basil Banghart as others in the gang of abductors.

He reiterated his identification, by photograph, of Willie Sharkey, the gangster who recently committed suicide in a St. Paul jail cell.

Factor failed to rise again to the dramatic heights which he reached at the first trial, which ended in a deadlock jury. This time he testified in a rather matter-of-fact manner. His large hands, which trembled the first time that he stepped from the witness stand to point out the gangsters, were steady this time.

The three defendants, Roger Touhy, Gus Schaefer and Albert Kator, also acted differently. At the first trial they smiled when identified. Today they were solemn.

Late today the state completed its case and rested. The defense will open tomorrow.

NEW UNION MAY END STRIKE OF TEAMSTERS

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—A new union was organized in an effort to break Chicago's Coal Teamsters' strike. Under the protection of police, some 300 teamsters, members of the striking union, voted last night to withdraw from the organization and join a new union to be known as the Coal Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Hikers and Helpers' Union No. 704.

Teams To Await Start of Southeastern Tourney Friday

WORK STARTED AT EAST LAKE FOR TOURNEY

Straw Covering Is Removed From Back Tees; Golfers Practice.

By Roy White.

First movements in preparation for the annual Atlanta Metropolitan open golf championship tournament, March 9, 10 and 11, on the No. 1 East Lake course, were made Wednesday morning when the winter covering of pine straw was removed from the back tees.

The back tees will be used during the 72-hole play, making the course considerably longer than at present, when winter playing rules are in effect.

Winter greens will be used and the covering on the summer greens will remain for several weeks longer.

Balls hit onto the summer greens must be stepped off the same distance to the putting surfaces of the regular winter greens.

WORK ON GREENS.

Considerable work will be done on the greens and fairways between now and tourney time. Officials of the East Lake Club stated Wednesday. A dozen and probably more East Lake amateurs are practicing regularly for the tourney and it is expected that some 18 or 20 simon-pures will enter from the home club.

Charlie Yates, former Georgia and Atlanta champion; Julius Hughes, city amateur champion and medalist in the southern amateur last year, and Scott Hudson Jr., former city champion, will head the parade of East Lake stars.

TICKET SALES.

Officials of the Junior Chamber of Commerce stated Wednesday that the Debutante Club, of which Caroline Crumley is president, will be in charge of the ticket sale. Members of the club will be stationed at Davidson-Paxon's, Rich's, Spalding's and Sears-Roebuck each day between the hours of 11 and 2, where single and season tickets may be purchased.

Early entries will have the privilege of three days of practice on the course before the tourney opens, it was announced Wednesday. Those entrants who pay in advance can practice March 6, 7 and 8, in advance of the opening on March 9.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the tourney and receiving the entries, but for the convenience of city golfers, professionals at the private and municipal courses can receive entries.

No player with a handicap of more than 10 will be permitted to participate in the 72-hole event.

JOHN MCGRAW RESTING WELL

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Feb. 21.—(AP)—John McGraw appeared today to be recovering from his illness to treatment for uric acid poisoning, doctors attending him indicated in a report on his condition.

The veteran baseball figure's pulse, temperature and respirations dropped slightly, and these developments were regarded by his doctors as encouraging. Attendants, however, still were fearful of pneumonia developing from his weakened condition.

A bulletin, issued by Drs. L. B. Chapman and E. K. Kellogg, following McGraw's condition, indicated that the player was resting comfortably, with temperature 102.4; pulse 92; respirations 30.

Collins, Jordan Will Meet Tonight

Wild Bill Collins and Tarzan Jordan will headline the regular weekly wrestling card at the Lakewood Heights arena tonight at 8 o'clock. They will meet in a boxing-style, take-all affair, with the best two out of three falls determining the winner.

In the semi-final, Jim Zysko, of the Atlanta Greek, meets John Mauldin, Zysko challenged Mauldin at the last week show and Promoter Frank Harris arranged the match for tonight.

Young London and Leon Fuller will open the program in a preliminary, scheduled for one hour.

The Lakewood Heights arena is located at Lakewood avenue and Jonesboro road, and will be well heated.

Let's Call Out the Army To Take Over Our Max Baer!

What a picture from Cuba! The Chocolate Kid under guard. And chopping a tree.

The story along with the picture declared that the one-time lightweight champion of the world had been arrested by the Cuban army and put to work.

The Kid was always forgetful about his training. He was careless like, so to speak. The result was that he got himself knocked loose from his title.

The Cubans feel very proud of that title which once belonged to the Kid. They go for fights in a warm way on the little island. And it is not surprising that Colonel Batista, the head of the new army, has arrested the Kid and put him to work.

I recall one evening watching a fight card in Havana, just off the Malecon drive where the ribbon of lights outline the seductive curve of the harbor. The spectators had all had a few bacardis and this, I think, makes them take their fights more seriously than we.

The Cubans have always been fighters. And good ones, too. But they never thought of using gloves instead of rifles until Big Jess Willard, the Kansas Giant, beat Jack Johnson there almost a couple of decades ago.

The idea of arresting the Kid and making him train is a splendid one. Connie Mack used to hire detectives to watch Rube Waddell. And Bugs Raymond had his keepers. Harry Greb was quite a trial to his trainers. And Max Baer is something of a case, so to speak.

IT MIGHT BE WORTH TRYING.

It might be worth trying in our country. I, for one, am tired of seeing Primo Carnera, affectionately referred to as Old Snaggle Tooth, going about as champion of the world. It is irksome. I hold with the late John L. Sullivan that the lesser titles may go where they listeth, but the heavyweight title is a real national asset. And should be kept in this country along with other exhibits.

I have read where the government is subsidizing, through the beneficence of the CWA, the struggling artists of the nation.

There seems to be no reason why, as a matter of national pride, the army could not be called out to quell Max Baer and put him to work on some road work and some boxing.

The army could also protect him from the process servers and all the young ladies who wish to woo Mr. Baer.

It is a sound idea. Max Baer is the only heavyweight we have who seems to have any lethal qualities in his fists. He seems to be our only chance to remove the crown from Carnera's over-sized skull and return it to the shores of Liberty and the New Deal.

And so, why not call out the army? The Cubans, in protecting their only national fist asset, have set us an example.

Let the New Deal go to work on Max Baer.

IF IT WERE NOT FOR THE ARMY.

If it were not for the army surrounding Kid Chocolate in his work of chopping the wood, I would believe the picture to be a phoney.

It is too bad the public does not know just how some of the pictures are made. I have never understood why a prize fighter should be photographed with an ax in his hand in the act of chopping down a tree.

In the first place, prize fighters do not chop trees. Or at least none has since Jim Jeffries' day. And in the second place, if any modern fighter tried to swing an axe he might chop himself. Yet one of the favorite poses is to have the fighter shuck off his coat and stand, in collar and tie and neatly pressed pants, with the ax held in about the position a golf club has his mashie for a short pitch.

Everyone knows very well that the fighter is not chopping wood, has never chopped wood and never will chop wood.

One day we wanted to picture a married ball player in the act of helping his wife wash the dishes. Such scenes are popularly supposed to appeal to the heart of the public.

And so we went to where the ball player lived. He was residing in a furnished flat and he and his wife ate out. The flat was not furnished with dishes. So we borrowed some dishes and some aprons from a neighbor lady with a kind heart, and made the pictures.

It got this ball player quite a reputation. All around the circuit I would hear them talking about this ball player and what a home-body he was. Actually, he was something of a beer-heister and his wife has since charged him with cruel treatment. But the picture made his reputation. He was a home-body. And a great guy.

But I don't suppose any publicity man could call out the army for a picture. The Kid Chocolate picture must be on the level. Let me look at it again. Well—the Kid hasn't made any impression on the log. But he has got his shirt off. And his pants aren't creased.

YOU'RE ON THE AIR.

There is one picture I wish I had. Before the Stribling-Schmeling fight there were some radio programs put on the air in an effort to stimulate the gate.

On one of them, in which your reporter was supposed to tell just what the south thought of Stribling's chances, appeared Primo Carnera. It was hot in Cleveland that summer and the big Italian wore no coat and no tie in his lavender silk shirt. His trousers were supported by one of those rope belts—the old gondola boy.

When it came Carnera's time to speak, he announced, in broken English, that he did not speak English very well but would read a statement in Italian.

With that he fished a crumpled bit of paper from the cavernous depths of one pocket and began to read it.

It was evident he had not read it before. It began to amuse him. He began to guffaw quite loudly, slapping his thigh, his face alight with admiration for the writer of his statement.

They cut the big fellow off the air. But I'd like to have a shot of him standing there—beating his tree-like leg and guffawing over a statement he was supposed to have written.

There are pictures and pictures. But view with suspicion those pictures of wood chopping.

Union Point Beats Greensboro High

UNION POINT, Ga., Feb. 21.—The Union Point High school quintet defeated Greensboro High school 25 to 14. Newsom and Drane were outstanding for the winners, the former directing his team's play, while the latter was high scorer, with 14 points. Callaway and Jackson were best for the losers.

Inman Park Juniors Beat Cyclones, 16-15

A last-minute rally enabled the Inman Park Juniors to beat the Cyclones, 16 to 15, in one of the best basketball games of the Juniors.

Brown and Sears, with 6 points each, led the scoring for the winners, while Lloyd Parker and Coggins played well for the losers.

'GLADIATOR'S' ROLE IS 'GATORS' FOR THIRD TIME

Florida Takes on Champion Team in Opener of Cage Tourney.

By Dillon Graham,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

For the third time in as many years the Florida basketball team has been given the opportunity to play the "Giant-Killer" role in the southeastern conference basketball tournament.

Two seasons ago a Florida quintet, which had had little success during the regular season, drew the defending champions from Maryland in the opening round. Florida accepted the designation and to the surprise of everyone eliminated an old liner outfit that was figured just as powerful as the one that had won the title the previous year.

Last year Florida had the same opportunity in its first game—the chance to upset the favored Kentucky team. But after threatening mildly in the first half the "Gators" folded up in the final period and were soundly beaten.

GETS CHAMPS AGAIN.

Saturday, in the second round of the Southeastern tournament here, Florida again is cast in the same role. It meets the defending champions from Kentucky.

This Florida team, although an in-and-out crew, is the best Florida has had in some years. That is, on the nights when it is clicking.

It has beaten Georgia and Auburn handsily, only to lose to the Bulldogs and Plainsmen on following evenings. It has lost to Clemson and yet seriously challenged the strong South Carolina club of the Southern conference.

No less an authority than Rex Enright, whose Georgia team won the crown in 1932, believes that Florida, when right, will prove difficult for any team.

Kentucky surely will be an odds-on choice, but if the Wildcats should view this contest lightly and play under their normal ability, they may be heading back to Lexington Sunday. The other seeded teams—Louisiana State, Vanderbilt and Alabama—also may encounter troublesome opponents in their debuts.

PRESSED TO WIN.

Louisiana will play either Tennessee or Auburn. The Tigers should win, but may be pressed to beat the Volunteers, who likely will be their rivals.

Vanderbilt plays Georgia or Georgia Tech and can expect no runaway victory over either. Alabama will draw Mississippi State and, although the Crimson's will be favored, their margin of victory likely will not be large.

The University of Mississippi today notified tournament officials that it would not enter. Mississippi had been paired against Mississippi State in the first round. Mississippi State now will have a first round bye and the only games on the opening night will be between Tennessee and Auburn and Georgia and Georgia Tech.

AUBURN DRILLS LARGEST SQUAD

AUBURN, Ala., Feb. 21.—Auburn's 1934 spring training football squad is one of the swiftest ever assembled on Drake Field, Coach Jack Meagher now having approximately 85 hopefuls under his wing. The initial call for spring training candidates was issued by 70 and several others have been issued uniforms by Sergeant Cole since the first workout.

All students wishing to display their physical prowess have been allowed to come out for the spring drills. All requests for uniforms have been granted and Coach Meagher will have an excellent idea of the football talent at Auburn in a few weeks.

Coach Meagher is in charge of the small army of Plainsmen moleskin wearers and his first assistant is Jimmie Hitchcock, all-American halfback in 1932. Six of the 1933 senior lettermen are also aiding the Tigers' new mentor. They are Ripper Williams, all-southern quarterback; Truck Talley, fullback; Bert Holmes, Bing Miller and Buddy McCollum.

Freshman Coach Ralph Jordan, who has been confined to his room this week with a severe cold, probably will start assisting Meagher Monday. Two other seniors, Boots Chambers and Gump Atrial, will receive their first coaching experience in about a week. Chambers fully recovered from an appendicitis operation and Atrial is busy captaining the gate-servers.

Smithie Swimmers Meet Emory 'Rats'

Tech High's swimming team will open its season at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon against the Emory freshmen in the Emory University pool.

Members of the team include Doyle Butler, John Parker, Robert Howell, Howard Thorne, G. Ward, Robert Coffey, Robert Cole, Bill Price and Ryan. The team has been working out for several weeks under the direction of Coach Savage.

A regular schedule of the Smithie swimmers is being arranged.

In Georgia's GREAT Outdoors.

For the small club we recommend the raising of only one species of game, or if you can get as many as 25 members, two species.

They are called quail and are fast breeders. They are having two fawns after the first year. The only expense is in the fencing of good pasture for them, with a bit of woodland. There you have only the cost of brood stock, fencing, a bit of hay and some salt. They will take care of themselves. For the individual as a hobby we cannot imagine anything better than using your spare time around home in raising a few game birds. If you have a small space in the back yard you can keep two or three pairs of quail or pheasants, and raise them under good hantam hens. The game breeders' directory is now ready for distribution, and your copy may be had free from the department of game and fish. Let us hear from you and help you.

A Golfing Princess Who Became a Queen

Yes, they dressed just a little bit differently in 1919. But this is the way Glenna Collett looked 15 years ago when she was only 15 years old, on her way to the women's golf throne. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Collett, of Providence, R. I., she gave fine promise and then carried through to win five women's championships. Her greatest bid for fame came at St. Andrews when she went out in 34 to stand up against the famous Joyce Wethered. But Miss Wethered's stretch running was too swift for the star who is now Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, and still a great golfer. VINES, TILDEN SWEEP SERIES

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Staging a magnificent rally after he appeared to be on the road to defeat, Big Bill Tilden shook off his campaign weariness tonight to conquer his old Davis cup rival, Henri Cochet, and give the United States a clean sweep of all five matches in the first Franco-American professional tennis series with three straight victories.

The scores of their brilliant fought five-set duel were 7-9, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Ellsworth Vines Jr., young California pro, tallied the other point for the United States by disposing of Martin Plaa, former world professional champion, 13-11, 6-3, 6-3.

The American pair had clinched the series with three straight victories Monday night but the final pair of singles battles attracted an even bigger crowd than the first night. The gate receipts were $20,066, making a total of 24,000 cash customers and $38,000 in receipts for the two-night program.

Georgia, Emory Swimmers Meet

Emory University's varsity swimming team met Georgia Tech's freshmen team at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Emory pool.

Georgia defeated Clemson last week, while Emory lost to the Clemson team in their opening match.

Swimming for Emory will be Levere Neely, Johnny Maddox, Pete Herault, Billy Randolph, Jimmy Campbell, Hugh Shackelford, Albert Reichert and Harlow Barnett.

Georgia will be represented by Hugh Hodgson, Sam Atkinson, Maurice Steinberg, George Kahn, Asa Candler, Haynes, Hudson, Hopper and Vetter.

West Georgia Loop Has Seven Teams

An enthusiastic meeting of the West Georgia league was held last night at Marietta with seven teams represented. Frank Anderson, president, conducted the meeting.

Teams and their representatives included: Villa Rica, Dewey McLendon; Bowdon, P. W. Hurt; Douglasville, Roy Entekin; Clarkdale, F. H. King; Dallas, H. L. Croker; Marietta, A. M. Morris and F. L. Brown; Canton, Frank Stewart.

There is an opening for one other team. Any interested cities in this vicinity are invited to enter. Otherwise, it will be a seven-team league. It was decided that two games per week will be played. There will be a split season.

'BAMA TRACKMEN.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Feb. 21.—Weather permitting, the Alabama track and field athletes will be given time and distance tryouts Saturday.

It was announced today by Coach Harold Reichert.

OLE MISS FAILS TO ENTER CHASE FOR CORTITLE

Two Games Will Open Meet; Teams Arrive Tonight.

By Jimmy Jones.

It's a good thing that old reliable basketball kibitzer, "bye," decided to enter the tournament. The committee in charge would have been in a bad way without him.

Yesterday the committee had to call on "bye" again when the University of Mississippi, sentimentally referred to as Ole Miss, wired that it would not be represented, despite a 36-35 victory over its rival-to-be in the first night's pairings, Mississippi State.

Evidently, Ed Walker, the Ole Miss coach, decided that the margin was too close. It took a field goal in the last split second of play to win for Ole Miss on its own court.

ANOTHER ONE.

This being the situation, Dr. A. H. Armstrong, the chairman of the committee, promptly paired Mississippi State with the silent partner, "bye," in place of the game that was to be played at 9:30 o'clock Friday night.

Thus a total of six teams, including the four seeded ones, will be idle in the first round of play and only two games will be played Friday night, instead of the scheduled three.

These ought to be excellent games, though, with Tennessee and Auburn, well-matched opponents, bound for a lively scrap starting at 7:30 o'clock, and Tech and Georgia, who have put on three thrillers already, down for a game at 8:30 o'clock.

It is the opinion of the committee that, despite the fact that only 10 teams are entered, the competition will be just as lively and just as high class as in previous years.

"As a matter of fact, there were some proposals to invite only 10 teams to begin with," one committee member pointed out.

While three of the Southeastern's "baker's dozen" members will be absent, there is no gainsaying the fact that the class of the lot will be represented.

The semi-finals and finals, which after all is said and done, really attract the largest crowds should be hummers.

WILDCATS FAVORED.

Kentucky, defending champion, should dominate the upper bracket with L. S. U. and Alabama cutting each other's throat, so to speak, in the bottom bracket, the team coming out on top tackling the wild Wildcats in the finals.

This supposition does not allow for the appearance of the "dark horse." Meanwhile, a certain amount of state interest is assured in the fact that either Tech or Georgia will survive through the first round, these teams having been paired together.

If the winner of this game can out Vanderbilt—and all odds are impossible—a state team will appear in the semi-finals. Tech lost a close match to the Commodores, 24-22, in its opening game here this season.

Teams start arriving tonight and all are expected to be on the grounds Friday morning.

ALABAMA STARS MAY MISS MEET

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Feb. 21.—(AP) Alabama's chances of pushing the favored Kentucky for the Southeastern conference basketball crown were dimmed today when Coach Kimbrough, star forward, underwent an operation on a fractured cheekbone injured in practice yesterday.

Kimbrough will not be able to play in the second half, and entities them to play Friday night and the Crimson's hopes were further marred by an injured back that was slowing up the play of Jim Walker, another regular forward.

A. L. T. Wins Petrel Fraternity Meet

Alpha Lambda Tau fraternity became champions at Oglethorpe Wednesday night by virtue of their 35-to-23 victory over the Pi Kappa Phi quintet in the final game of the interfraternity tournament. The losers had held the title for the past two years and had been victorious last year in possession of the cup.

Copeland and Stewart were the leading players for the victors, and Thompson and Anthony for the losers. Borman, for the losers, played a scintillating game on the defense for the ex-champions and added to his good work by scoring well on the offense.

A large crowd witnessed the game, which was preceded by a battle between the S. A. E. outfit from Tech and the Phi Kappa Phi team composed of players from the Aces and the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity representing Oglethorpe. The Tech outfit made a track meet of the game, winning 61 to 17.

Casey Stengel Leaves for East To Confer on Dodger Post

CAREY DROPPED AS CLUB PILOT AFTER 2 YEARS

Stengel, Great Friend of Max's, May Refuse To Take Job.

By Foster Bailey.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Max Carey, born Maximilian Carnarius, today was dropped as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, after two years as leader of one of the most colorful and successful teams in baseball.

No successor has been appointed, but Charles D. (Casey) Stengel, Carey's right-hand man on the Dodger staff, is speeding east by train from his home in Glendale, Cal., to take over the club.

Stengel is the unofficial boss of the Brooklyn team and a colorful leader of the best Dodger traditions, but there was the possibility he might turn it down because of loyalty to Carey, who brought him back to the big time after several years in the minors.

If Stengel should refuse an offer of one of the most prized berths in baseball, it is the general belief that Marty McManus, an old friend and associate for many years of the Dodgers' general manager, A. B. Hertz, is first in line. McManus recently was signed as a Dodger player after being let out as manager of the Boston Red Sox.

Carey, one of the smartest of them all as a star outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates from 1911 to 1926, took over the management of the team two years ago after Wilbert Robinson, leader of the team for a number of years, had been ousted by his long-time enemy, Stephen W. McKeever, the Dodger president.

Noted as a great base-runner himself and an expert inside story, Carey attempted to rebuild the club along lines featuring speed and cleverness. In the new scheme of things, such Flatbush idols as Babe Herman, the outfielder, departed. Attendance at Ebbets field went into a decline and so did the team.

After finishing third in 1932, the Dodgers barely escaped the cellar last year, winding up in sixth place, while reports of internal strife grew. It was said Carey was at odds with a number of players, including Joe Stripp, third baseman, and none too well satisfied himself as the result of a 50 per cent cut in salary.

McKeever said he was making considerable money in an outside business and his retirement—if he does not get another place—will not be the blow it would to many others. The Dodgers will pay off his contract in full.

Fair Street Cards Two Main Bouts

A pair of main bouts will feature the card at the Fair street arena, Fair street and Capitol avenue, next Monday night, February 26.

Freddie Lassiter, light-heavyweight champion of Ohio, will come from Columbus, Ohio, to meet Bill Crussell, new champion of Georgia, in the south. Lassiter is the roughest, toughest man in the game, as fans who saw him in action here several months ago will remember. On that occasion he took a beating from everyone in the place and licked them all, including the referee.

Stanley Burch, light-heavyweight champion of Australia, will defend his title against the local champion, and is ranked by the leaders in the National Wrestling Association as the second best light-heavyweight in the world. He has been booked for the other main match, meeting Sergeant Harry Nixon after the wedding ceremony for the popular army man from Fort Meyer, Va., and Miss Idalia Langley, of Atlanta.

The card will be completed by another first-class match, to be announced later.

Down the Alleys

The George Washington duckpin sweepstakes bowlers will fire the guns in the opening five games of the first block at 2 o'clock this afternoon. A number of other bowlers, unable to get away from work in time for the early afternoon games, will bowl their first five games at 8 o'clock and the remaining five games will be bowled with all contestants starting promptly at 8 o'clock.

George W. McKay, George French, George Hiram Tyler, Hobart Crowe, John S. Bick, Walter S. Lawson, Fred P. Kellam, D. I. Tignor and four other bowlers will bring the total of entries received for the meet up to an even dozen that will be trying to win one of the three cash prizes to be awarded to the winners. Five dollars is the amount of the entry fee, and it includes the cost of the game to be bowled. The winner gets 50 per cent of the cash prize fund; runner-up 30 per cent and third place 20 per cent.

The George Washington sweepstakes is one of the very few one-day holiday tournaments of the year, in the south, and attracts some of Atlanta's best players.

G. W. (George Washington) McKay won the initial staging of this holiday meet last year with a 1,248 total for the ten games, setting what was then a high mark for ten games on the local alleys, but the mark was bettered in the more recent John Bick stakes. Always a great tournament bowler, McKay will be out to try for a win again, but he will have formidable competition with some of the city's best duckpinners rolling against him.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 21.—Eight golfers have been selected to represent the Glen Arden Country Club, Thursday, in the Georgia-Florida Golf League's annual Washington birthday tournament, which will be held at Moultrie.

FAMOUS GEORGIA ATHLETES TODAY and YESTERDAY

Lucius B. (Luke) Appling

Lucius B. Appling, whose first name has been reduced to plain Luke, as we sports people have a habit of doing, might have been a first-class college footballer for four years at Oglethorpe University, instead of the American league's most sensational young shortstop of 1933.

In fact, he might have remained the Oglethorpe footballer, but for a certain college baseball game between his team and Mercer University played at LaGrange, Ga., on a spring day in 1930.

It so happened that the Mercer pitchers didn't know very much about Luke Appling, since he only boasted a certain amount of local baseball prestige at the time for his work at Fulton High school as a shortstop under coach Bird Hope, one of Frank Anderson's best catchers.

FOUR HOMERS. All that the Mercer pitchers did was to serve four balls right into Luke's hands and he hit all four of them out of the park for home runs.

That attracted the attention of various professional ball clubs, one of the Cracker's enough, was the Atlanta Crackers.

It took a little more sharp right-handed hitting by Young Mr. Appling to convince them, but finally, after considerable haggling and hawing and a bonus, the name of Lucius B. (just plain Luke to us) was written at the bottom of a contract.

It was one of the few profitable player investments that the Crackers of modern days have made. Frank Anderson, the boy's college coach; Duhy Walton, his high school coach; Bird Hope, his high school coach, and a few other baseball men of Atlanta, had been convinced of his worth long before the professional clubs became convinced of it.

Thus a home town boy finally got a break with the Crackers. And this one made good on it.

Luke Appling then not turned 21, played only 104 games of professional baseball before he was in the big leagues, bought by the Chicago White Sox for $20,000.

ON ONE YEAR HERE. Appling finished that season with Atlanta and has been with the White Sox ever since. He batted .326 with the Crackers and .326 with the Sox. He improved steadily in this respect, despite the customary number of bobbles for a beginner.

No youngster ever went to the big leagues and stayed there with more eagerness and determination than Luke Appling.

Going to Chicago with a big reputation, despite his record, he was under a big handicap to begin with. He had been highly touted as the college wonder from Georgia by the Chicago press.

There was some disappointment when the boy who had hit four home runs in a college game and .326 for a Class A professional club in his first season failed to hit anywhere near that pace in the big leagues.

He was in six games at the tail end of the 1930 season with the Sox, went to bat 28 times, getting eight hits for an average of .308.

BUSH MOVED HIM. The next spring he was a sensation in the White Sox training camp. When the season started he was one of the club's regular infielders. But he was a bit nervous and bewildered that year.

The Chicago manager, Donie Bush, played him all around the infield, trying in vain to find the spot for him. He was at second, short and third base at various times. And he wound up with the disappointing average of .232 and a flock of errors behind him.

He tried hard, maybe too hard. Donie Bush was a little rough, and the Chicago fans were patient enough with the likeable lad from Georgia. But Luke found it tough, very tough.

The next year, which was 1932, found him doing some better. He kicked his batting average up to .274—not so bad at that for an infielder—and played in 130 games.

But his fielding was still erratic. His defensive record was under .900, being .898, whereas the year before he had fielded an even .900.

Basketball Expensive? Look at the Records

Tech and Georgia Played to 150 in 1906 and Made Money!

By Jimmy Jones.

The sport of basketball, which is seen at its best in the "toona-ment" which starts here Friday night, had a very humble beginning in Atlanta back in 1906, some old records reveal.

The first game played between Tech and Georgia, that year at Athens, drew a total of 150 spectators and the moneymen sum of $30 as Tech's share of the "gate." And neither team lost money!

Of the amount, $29.20 was consumed in railroad fare to Athens and return, 35 cents for car fare and the remaining .05 for a basketball lacing.

That game was played on March 10, on March 24, 1906, and on March 27, 1906, Tech and Georgia played again at the old Peachtree auditorium and the total gate was $75. Of this, the Georgia team received $40 for expenses and $4 was paid officials, leaving a profit of $31 to the Tech athletic association.

NOT SO BAD. A grand total of 130 viewed this game. Tech's line-up for those two games was composed of L. K. West, Ed Lafitte, V. G. Baker, J. W. Sutcliffe, Derrick and Z. V. Myers, sub.

The Georgia line-up was missing from the records.

Tech won the first game in Athens, 27-13 (a very decent score) but eked out on the second in Atlanta, 13 to 12.

The records show that while the crowds were small, both teams made a little money.

Tech played Auburn on February 17, 1906, before a crowd of 17, being 35 persons present and a gate of about $100. Auburn received $60 as its share of the expenses, but the officials' cut was reduced to $3.50. (Must have had a cheap official on that night.)

A CITY LEAGUE! They had a city basketball league that year in Atlanta, too, in which Georgia Tech, Atlanta Y. M. C. A., Atlanta Athletic Club and Fort McPherson participated as a "big four."

The records show that each team played six games.

It is interesting to note that there were eligibility requirements, even in those days. Here is an excerpt from the rules:

"No college official of higher grade than instructor shall be eligible, but

RUFFING SIGNS, BUT LYN LARY REFUSES OFFER

Dodgers Release Shaute. Minor League Reorganized.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Charley (Red) Ruffing, veteran right-handed pitcher, signed his New York Yankee contract today, but Lyn Lary, infielder, announced at White Plains that he had turned down the offer.

Lary said he had returned his contract to the Yankee offices, unsigned.

Dodgers Release Joe Shaute. The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the unconditional release of Joe Shaute, 33-year-old left-handed pitcher.

During a major league career of 11 years with Cleveland of the American league, Shaute won 90 and lost 107. Used almost exclusively in relief roles last season, Joe appeared in 41 games but was credited with only three victories against four defeats.

Western League Is Reorganized. CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The Western league, oldest of minor league circuits, was reorganized today when Denver and Pueblo, Colo., voted out of the organization and franchises were granted to Davenport and Rock Island, Ill., of the defunct Mississippi Valley league.

Giants To Start Practice Saturday. MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Manager John McGraw has scheduled the 1934 call for spring training for his world champion New York Giants to begin next Saturday.

Beginning then, pitchers and catchers will start daily workouts until March 1, when the remainder of the squad is due here to commence two short sessions a day on the practice field.

"Last fall, I said there would be but one session daily, and that a long one," remarked Terry. However, I find that two trials of shorter duration, in this hot weather, will be more advisable.

Four members of the squad already are here ready to begin training.

Spud Davis Signs Cardinal Contract. ST. LOUIS, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Virgil Davis, the big catcher obtained by the Cardinals in the trade which sent Jimmy Wilson to the Phillies as manager, signed his 1934 contract here today.

James "Ripper" Collins, regular first baseman also signed, it was announced, and Glenn Spencer, who was obtained from the Cincinnati Reds in the Bob O'Farrell trade, has been sent to Columbus of the American Association on option.

Masked Wrestlers Meet at Avondale

An unusual match has been made for Avondale at 8 o'clock tonight, when two "masked" wrestlers meet in a 90-minute bout.

The "Masked Marvel" clad in red has defeated some of the best wrestlers in the country, while the "Shad-ow" a grus in a trade which sent Chief Lakeside, Sioux Indian of North Dakota, clashes with a great favorite in Sargeant Harry Nixon, U. S. army champion.

"Count" Herman Onch, former light-weight champion of Europe, clashes with a tough "Bull" Schmidt, of San Francisco.

The fireworks will be started off by Pat Williams squaring off against Fred Borg, both are wrestling rivals at the Decatur High school.

PLAYS PRO BALL AT AGE OF 40

first one position and then another. He was quarterback a lot of the time.

The players of that era all wore nose and shin guards and all the heavy padding available for protection. Gray never once suffered a painful injury in the program.

"There was such a thing as the perfect understanding in pro football. If any player tried to rough it up, he was liable to get hamstringing. The modern players don't know about hamstringing. Take a fellow flat on his stomach. An opponent would grab him by a foot with one hand and the other with the other and try to make the two meet. It sorter got him in the back."

GREATEST PLAYERS. Gray always had two good choices in football players—Thorpe and Oliphant, Army's great star. He played a practice game against Oliphant.

"When Oliphant, with his tremendous legs pumping up and down like pistons, hit you, you knew you were hit," Gray said.

Gray played with Chief Newberry, the great Indian star; Eddie Bannan, Joe McCartney, George Sharpe and many, many others.

He thinks it is futile to compare the game as played today with the game of the beef and brawn era. The principle is the same, but numerous changes have been made. The present day game is more scientific, faster and not quite as rough.

Sixteen years in professional football without a kick. Calling it quits with a 40-0 record, it is quite a remarkable record.

And now Jack Gray is practically on top in Atlanta shooting circles. The old competitive spirit is pretty hard to beat.

Baseball Managers Will Meet Tonight

There will be a meeting of all commercial baseball team managers at Trammel Scott's store, 98 North Broad street, at 7:30 tonight. It is expected that two full leagues will be formed this year among the local commercial teams, so that both strong and weaker teams can be taken care of.

Teams from the territory surrounding Atlanta are also invited to have someone present to investigate the possibilities of joining these leagues.

GOLF FACTS Not Theories

By Alex J. Morrison.

SHOULDERS SHOULD BE PLACED OVER THE BALLS DURING SWING.

Alex Morrison says: In every successful swing body torsion is the main source of power.

Body torsion is the part of the swing which very few players understand. It means a body twist, but obviously this twist must be properly executed or it will harm instead of help the swing.

In the backswing the first bit of turning should be placed over the right hip. Then the full backward turning of the hips should be followed by a fuller turn of the shoulders.

It is this difference between the turn of the shoulders and hips that develops real power for the downswing.

After you have made the proper windup just keep your chin back and the unwinding will take place automatically.

In Georgia's Fields and Streams

By H. A. CARTER

A few nights ago I happened to run across my fishing tackle packed away in a box in the corner of my closet. I bought it for a while among the hand-me-down patterns. Most of them were tied on short leaders, but the leaders of the olden days were made of rawhide. Nevertheless, those Cochen, Parma, chene Belles, Gnats, Red Isis, Millers, Jack Scott, and Bees brought back many pleasant remembrances of other days.

When I was first trying to cast a fly, I found that it wasn't as easy as it looks. I'll never forget the disgust written in large letters on the face of the veteran angler who was teaching me, he thought, to cast a fly. I snapped leaders like a bull whip, and flies flew in every direction. When I went into the stream, the trout would fright and headed for the other end of the county via stream line. It was terrible.

When came a period of discouragement when I reverted to my childhood cane pole. Flies were pretty, I thought, but surely a smart fish couldn't be fooled with a bunch of feathers. After that I looked over the flies again, and decided to make a few. There must have been some residual infestation of trout fever in my blood, or I would never have tempted fish in such a rash fashion. I bought hooks and silk worm gut for feathers and raided my mother's work basket for bits of silk and woolen yarn and linen, whenever I knew she was in the house and I needed materials. I got a small vase and went to work. And of all the atrocious looking affairs that ever purported to be a fly, those first few "hand made flies" (and how I loved those words, not that all flies aren't hand made, but they sounded well) were the gems of purest ray serene.

There came a day, however, when those meager were the only bait I had with me, and I tried one in a small pond. Somehow I managed to get that massive pseudofish on the water and the miracle happened. One poor deluded fish actually struck it. It was not a trout, but a bluegill bream and he gave me a jolly little scrap. My dream was over. As a fly-maker were dispelled, but only for a moment. I never again succeeded in getting a fish to rise to one of my flies. That leaves only the thought for the intellect of the one I did get.

Some day I'll try it again. I have found another man to show me how.

National Girl Reserve Secretary Arrives Today To Visit Y.W.C.A.

Miss Bessie Teall, national Y. W. C. A. Girl Reserve secretary, will visit Atlanta this week, meeting Friday, Saturday and Monday with Girl Reserve committee, officers and advisors, and speaking before the board of directors. Arriving today Miss Teall will be entertained at an informal luncheon Friday at the home of Mrs. Howard See, 208 Westminister drive, following the committee meeting held at 11 o'clock. Mrs. See will be assisted in entertaining by Mrs. F. J. Henry and Miss Anne Priddy.

At this meeting, Miss Teall will lead an informal discussion, explaining the recent survey carried on in 40 associations by national board under the direction of Dr. Helen Davis. She will guide the local committee in evaluating its work and determining the types of activities and age-range of girls reached. Her suggestions and advance plans will enable the Atlanta department to carry forward beneficial and wholesome programs for adolescent girls. Plans will be made also for the regional Girl Reserve conference to be held at Camp Highland early in June, when delegates from Alabama, Georgia, Florida and Tennessee will meet for joint discussions and planning.

At 4 o'clock Friday, Miss Teall will meet the officers, advisers and leaders of the 22 Girl Reserve clubs at the Y. W. C. A., 37 Auburn avenue, when program-building will feature the discussion. Speaking on "Glimpses of Other Girl Reserves," Miss Teall will describe the activities carried on in other clubs and compare the Atlanta program with that of other large city groups.

Mrs. F. J. Henry, chairman of the Girl Reserve committee, will entertain at a dinner Friday evening at her home, 2086 Ponce de Leon, honoring Miss Teall and Miss Anne Priddy. Miss Teall will enjoy a sight-seeing tour over the city Sunday and will meet informally many Y. W. C. A. leaders.

Saturday at 11 o'clock Miss Teall will meet with Mrs. Lula Lowe Weeden and Girl Reserve leaders of the Phyllis Wheatley clubs, emphasizing the importance of guided recreation for negro girls and their part in all association activities.

Monday at 10:30 o'clock Miss Teall will speak at a meeting of the board of directors on "The Y. W. C. A. from Young Girls' Viewpoint." Mrs. O. H. Matthews will entertain at a luncheon at her home, 61 Barksdale drive, N. E., following board meeting.

Miss Teall, who has wide experience in work for younger girls, is a secretary in the leadership division of the national board, carrying on correspondence and acting as advisor on Girl Reserve programs. She was graduated from Mt. Holyoke in 1921, and has served as executive in Honolulu, Hawaii and as secretary in Bayonne, N. J. Her home is in Bloomfield, N. J.

Members of the Girl Reserve committee who will assist in entertaining Miss Teall are Mesdames Henry See, Willard See, H. R. Albion, E. H. Anderson, R. P. Smith, A. F. Quillian, O. H. Matthews, Lewis Menzel, E. M. Mobley, E. G. Andrews, Paul Kelly.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

Needs No Cooking! Big Saving!

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water for a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your sugar syrup. The pint thus made gives you four times as much cough remedy for your money, yet it is far more effective than ready-made medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous as a healing agent for throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Friday evening, February 23, at 8 o'clock, on the third floor of the Terminal Station building. A program of entertainment has been arranged, followed by a dance. An enjoyable evening is promised all railroad people who will attend. There is no charge for admission.

spring comes to rich's men's shop

Over half a century ago we began catering to southern men. Spring 1934 finds us ready again to fill his needs. With clothes fashioned after the dictates of the masculine world that expresses no wish for apparel noticeably smart but demands that it be casually correct, trim as a whistle and as comfortable as an old shoe. With value a dominant idea yet never dominating quality. It is a simple matter for a man to dress at Rich's this spring and achieve a sense of good grooming that stands him well to meet the everyday world at work, at sport and the dressed-up world on formal occasions, whether he be of college age or a business man.

What has gone before: Douglas Brookhart Temple, New York bank president, is much disappointed in his son Doug who is dabbling in art in Paris. Summoned home, Doug arrives after his father's death to learn that half of the Temple fortune of 20 millions is left to him and half to Charity Jones, his father's trusted secretary, on condition that they marry within a week. When Doug sees Charity, an Iowa farmer's daughter who worked her way through business college, he says he can't marry such a plain old-fashioned girl; anyway he's engaged to Yvonne Vandergriff, beautiful debutante. The Vandergriffs have concealed the loss of their wealth and Yvonne wants him to marry Charity, get a divorce and marry her. The day they are married at city hall, Doug tells Charity she must live her own life and goes to see Yvonne, who takes charity of friends to Doug's penthouse and flouts Charity. When Doug invites a party of Broadwayites to the Temple estate on Long Island Charity realizes keenly she does not fit into the picture. She likes her to bob her hair. In Billie's chic bathing suit Charity scarcely knows herself. She rescues from drowning Dr. Hatchel, whom she met the night of Yvonne's surprise party and who tried to kiss her the next day when she went to his apartment for tea.

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XVI.

Down the hall Billie leaned against her door to laugh weakly at the sight of Doug piloting Charity down the stairs. Charity would have been even more amazed if she could have heard Billie at Doug's door a few minutes before, laying the foundation for his suspicion of the handsome Dr. Hatchel.

In a few seconds she had convinced Doug that Charity needed protection from the red-headed designing physician, who was at that moment paying court to her in her room.

Billie sat on her bed counting the minutes until it was time to go to the dining room. She wanted particularly to see Chickie Belle's face when the queenly Mrs. Temple walked into the dining room, changed from a drab little moth into a golden butterfly.

It would be a grand show. She felt like a director on the opening night of his Broadway production.

Billie had expected drama at the dinner table. And she was disappointed, in a way.

It was the quietest dinner party she had ever seen. Whether Charity had floored her guests with the green evening gown, the new hair cut and her haughty changed expression, she did not know. Except for the puzzled, slightly poisonous expression she caught in the star green eyes of Chickie Belle when they fell on Charity, there wasn't much excitement.

Charity took her place as hostess almost with defiance. Doug made a vain attempt to bring safety into the party, and occasionally Hatchel would try to help him out. But it was Doug, in pajamas and robe—and she recalled that the girls had spied on her the evening before to see whether her husband went to her—and she hoped desperately they were still keeping watch. Somehow—she must manage to keep Doug.

He grinned, and asked a little self-consciously if he was going to invite me to sit down?

Charity motioned to the chaise longue, imbued again with the courage of anger. "Stretch out and make yourself comfortable. You must be tired after all the entertaining."

Doug piled pillows up and leaned back. "I am. Old age, I guess."

Charity curled up in the big chair, her heart beating a tattoo. She wondered why he had come. He looked over at her a moment in silence, then smiled.

"I like your hair cut. It takes about 10 years off you."

Charity blushed, but tried to say flippantly, "And my eye-brows? They've been barbered, too."

"You look—well, you look good. Doug seemed to be studying her features. "Your gown is stunning. I didn't know a hair cut and a dress could make so much difference in a gal."

"You didn't know this afternoon on the beach, did you?"

It was Doug's turn to squirm. "I certainly didn't. But nobody got wise—thank goodness. Or thanks to Billie, I should say."

"Billie is sweet," Charity said. "She cut my hair and fixed me up. I bought this gown from her."

It was said so naively that Doug felt a stab of pity for Charity. He smiled, almost tenderly. "So you're vain, too, just like every other woman?"

Charity winced. "I—suppose I am—human. Billie and I are going shopping tomorrow and I'm going to buy out the town."

"Good," Doug was really glad. "I'll expect to see you modeling in the society fashion shows, after this."

Charity looked at Doug for signs of sarcasm, believing he might be making fun of her. But she saw only a wholesome grin, and a friendly look in his eyes that she had never seen before. She'd never liked him half so well. It gave her the courage to say boldly, "And to what, may I ask, sir, do I owe this midnight call? Do you want to come now?"

Doug grinned again. Then he was of little use. Most of the crowd seemed anxious to get back to town. Only a few of the girls were to remain to be taken back the next morning. Charity had asked Billie to stay and take her shopping for clothes the next day.

She was astonished to see how much easier it was to sit at her place as hostess than the evening before. Then she had burned with humiliation that she could think of nothing to say, knowing that she was ill-governed and unattractive. A sparrow among the birds of paradise of Broadway.

Only 24 hours had passed. And in that short time she had come to feel superior to Doug's friends. At first she had a desire to say things that would make them realize what she thought of them. But that soon passed away and left her feeling strangely detached—yet with a ranking anger that was pleasantly sustaining.

She held that feeling all through dinner and through the goodbyes. By 11 everyone who was leaving had gone, and the others decided it would be a good idea to get some sleep. Billie went to her room feeling a little disappointed that things had gone so smoothly—burning with curiosity to find out whether Doug had told Charity he loved her.

She wanted to go to Charity's room and have a talk before she went to sleep. But her intuition told her that Doug would find some excuse to pay a call on his wife. She did not want to be in the way. Perhaps, Charity would tell her all about it the next day.

Billie was a good prophet. Charity had not undressed, and was sitting by the window gazing with a tired melancholy at the moon when a knock came on her door. Thinking it was Billie, she switched on a light and called "Come in."

But it was Doug, in pajamas and robe—and she recalled that the girls had spied on her the evening before to see whether her husband went to her—and she hoped desperately they were still keeping watch. Somehow—she must manage to keep Doug.

squirmed uncomfortably. "Darn it, Charity! You're keeping me busy apologizing to you. It's a new sensation to me, and I don't like it."

"Then don't do it," Charity said seriously. "You don't need to. I don't expect it."

"But you rate it." Doug sat up, his chin in his hands. He looked young and penitent. "Saturday evening I forgot all about you and chase out and leave you all to yourself. And Sunday afternoon you show up just in time to rescue Doc from drowning. You were the only sober person on the ranch—besides Billie. If it hadn't been for you there would have been a tragedy that would have filled the papers."

"Oh," Charity tried to turn it off, "you would have made it."

"You know damn well I wouldn't!" Doug said defiantly. "I was all shot when you passed me in the water. I was lucky to get back to shore without folding up."

"I'd much rather you'd forget it," Charity smiled, a crooked little smile of embarrassment.

"Never," Doug shook his head soberly. "You've saved my face two times now—the night when the gang came to the penthouse, and this weekend. I wish there were some way I could pay you back."

A bold idea hit Charity. It was so bold that she almost lost her speech. But she managed to say shakily, "You can—do me a favor. Then I'll be eternally grateful to you."

Doug looked scared. For a second he was sure she was going to ask him not to see Yvonne Vandergriff again. It would be like a woman—to take advantage of a man like that.

"What would you like to have me do?" he said fearfully.

If a bomb had suddenly exploded in the room Doug could not have been more amazed when Charity, her face whitening at her boldness, asked timidly, "We—would you stay here with me tonight?"

His jaw dropped. Of course, he thought, it was a trap. Charity saw the white set of his mouth, the amazed cynical look in his eyes, and suddenly the light dawned upon her. Doug thought she was trying to force herself upon him. First, she could have died with humiliation as he stared at her. Then she felt herself growing burning angry.

"Don't misunderstand me," she said icily. "I have some pride too."

"Then—don't misunderstand me," Doug hated in confusion. "Why do you want me to stay here?"

Charity stood up—shaking with fury in every fiber. He was astonished at the fire in her eyes, the blazing anger in her cheeks. And for the first time in her life Charity Jones Temple was truly beautiful. She stood, regal as a queen, her head thrown back defiantly, her lips curling scornfully, and gazed at him:

"I asked you only to keep you out of a scandal. These lovely friends you hold so dear and so entertaining, watched the room of the farmer's daughter all last night to see whether the handsome Temple heir came here. I only thought it was much wiser to let them think I might be a real marriage. It might make them think you're a little more of a man if they think you married me for some other reason, than to get your father's money."

It was Doug's turn to be furious. "They couldn't do such a thing!" "Oh, yes they could," Charity was so spent with anger that she sat down weakly. "They can do a lot of things that ladies and gentlemen wouldn't do."

"I'll stay," Doug sat down on the lounge heavily.

Charity laughed bitterly. "You'll stay—to save your face again. Well, don't stay on my account. I'm sure I don't care now."

Doug threw himself face down and groaned miserably. "I—I suppose I'll spend the rest of my life misunderstanding you, apologizing to you."

"Don't trouble to apologize to me," Charity turned coldly to turn out the light. "I'll go in the bathroom to undress."

By VICTOR EHRANK.
NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The bond market edged up into new high territory since 1931 today, but prices, as a whole, were a trifle irregular, most of the time and trading occasionally bordered on dullness.
While transfers totaled only $15,000,000, the value of the market yesterday's four-hour session aggregated $13,215,000, the average for 60 domestic corporate issues was one-tenth of a point at 85.3. The market will be closed tomorrow for the holiday.
Economic news continued cheerful. The average four-year 6 per cent coupon showing more than seasonal advances. Of principal interest to the market was announcement of the New York Central's refunding plan which involves an offering of $50,000,000 of 6 per cent collateral bonds which are convertible into stock at $40 a share for three years and a share thereafter until maturity in 1944. The new bonds were quoted on a "when issued" basis at a premium of around 12 per cent shortly after the terms of the offering were made public.
Other carrier obligations did little or nothing. Some of the utilities and industrials received attention. Among them, up fractions to a point or more, were some bonds of American Telephone & Telegraph, Philadelphia Telephone, and Coal & Iron and Western Union.
United States government securities were again quiet and a bit mixed. Obligations of France, Argentina and Germany got up a point or so, but loans of Austria, Brazil and Great Britain eased.

NEW YORK CENTRAL TO FLOAT BOND ISSUE

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Directors of the New York Central railroad today authorized the issuance of $50,000,000 ten-year 6 per cent collateral bonds convertible into common stock at $40 a share for three years and at $50 a share thereafter. The rights will be sold in the securities market of the Produce Exchange at 115.5.
The new bonds will be issued as of May 10. They will be sold to stockholders to record March 5, who are permitted to subscribe to $1,200 principal amount of bonds, at par, for every 100 shares of stock held.
The bonds are callable at 105 or in part at 105 during the first three years, 102 during the next three, 101 during the third three-year period, and at par during the final year before maturity.

TOBACCO PRICES SHOW UPTURN IN JANUARY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The bureau of agricultural economics today reported that the average price of all types of tobacco strengthened during January after an earlier drop and came back to approximately the level of the opening week of the marketing season.
Reports of the bureau's grading service show that burley prices on a grade basis advanced more than market averages. Due to a decline in quality of tobacco offered on the market. Prices of burley declined until about the middle of the month but advanced later as the average for the entire belt during the week which ended February 1, was about 71.5 cents per pound.

ELECTRIC OUTPUT DROPS DURING WEEK

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The Edison Electric Institute reported today that electric power production for the country last week, which included Lincoln's birthday, totaled 1,451,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 1,651,535,000 the previous week and 1,460,732,000 a year ago. The rise over 1933 was 11.6 per cent compared with a gain of 11.4 per cent the week before.

LIMIT IS INCREASED FOR CRUDE OIL OUTPUT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—An increase of 99,000 barrels in the daily allowable oil production to become effective March 1, was announced today by Secretary Ickes, modifying an order of December 20 which set the allowable for January, February and March at 2,183,000 barrels daily.
In announcing the increases, the secretary explained that carefully prepared estimates for the interior department indicated the usual spring increase in consumptive demand would make advisable an increase in March of crude production.

Sugar and Coffee.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Raw sugar was unchanged today for spots at 3.27 but futures were higher.
The prompt taking up of the 34 March futures had a strong influence on the market. The market advanced 1/8 to 9 points reactions following renewed liquidation with the market. Sales were 25,500 tons.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Information

CLOSING HOURS

Want Ads are accepted up to 9 p. m. for publication the next day. The closing hour for the Sunday edition is 8:30 p. m. Saturday.

CLASSIFIED RATES

Daily and Sunday rates per line for consecutive insertions:
One line 10 cents
Three lines 25 cents
Seven lines 50 cents
Minimum 2 lines (12 words).

In estimating the space of an ad figure six average words to a line. Ads ordered for three or more days and stopped before expiration will only be charged for the number of times the ad is published. No adjustments made at the rate earned. Errors in advertisements are the advertiser's responsibility. The Constitution will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

All want ads are restricted to their proper classification and the Constitution reserves the right to revise or reject any advertisement.

Ads ordered by telephone are accepted from persons listed in the telephone directory only. In return for this courtesy the advertiser is expected to remit promptly.

The privations that Colt had endured had weakened him. He was stricken with fever. While he lay in bed, the Golden Lion, hunted for all three. Though at times he made his kill at a distance, he never failed to carry the carcass of his prey to the woman.

By day he gathered and brewed herbs, and at night she sat at the feet of her patient intoning weird prayers, the origin of which reached back through the countless ages to vanished temples. She wrought with every artifice at her command to drive away the sickness.

When, upon her knees at his feet, she prayed, or when she chanted strange songs in an unknown tongue, accompanying them with mysterious gestures that were a part of the ritual, Colt was sure that the fever was worse and that he had become delirious again.

And so the days dragged on, and while Colt lay helpless, Zverli marched toward Italian Somaliland and Tarzan, recovered from his wound, followed the plain trail of the expedition; and from his shoulder little Nikma scolded and chattered through the day.
